GOVERNORS CONFERENCE

Ike Openly Backs Bid For Scranton

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower urged Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton Saturday to make himself available for the Republican presidential nomination, a Scranton aide said.

The former President considered the only man who might be able to generate a last-gap effort to keep the nomination from conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater, was also said to have voiced the hope that the GOP National Convention will "remain open."

Scranton met with Eisenhower at the latter's request Saturday morning at Ike's Gettysburg, Pa., farm. Jack Conmy, Scranton's press secretary told UPI by telephone that Eisenhower urged the governor to "stress the fact that if he believed a majority of the delegates wanted him, he would accept the nomination."

The meeting at Gettysburg came shortly before both Eisenhower and Scranton were due to come here for the national governors conference — and a possible GOP summit meeting on the presidential question.

GOLDWATER

Both Goldwater and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon accepted invitations Saturday to attend the conference. Some GOP governors, worried about tense feeling between party factions in the wake of Goldwater's surprise California primary win Tuesday, voiced hope that a summit meeting might resolve some of the bitterness.

Such a peace conference was suggested as the only realistic approach now, on grounds that Goldwater has moved so far ahead in his bid for the nomination that he is unstoppable.

But Saturday's Eisenhower-Scranton meeting indicated the possibility of a stop-Goldwater move is not yet dead.

Goldwater spokesmen here took news of the Ike-Scranton meeting in stride. Gov. Paul Fannin of Arizona told a news conference that the two Pennsylvanians are "very close friends" and it would be natural for them to meet in advance of the governors' conference. He added that Eisenhower had said he would not join a "stop Goldwater" movement and may be expected to remain neutral.

Cliff White, Goldwater campaign field director, said it was "perfectly understandable and appropriate" for Eisenhower and Scranton to confer. Both spokesmen said an "open convention" would not conflict with Goldwater's campaign.

Conmy indicated that Scranton would amplify Sunday on the meeting with Eisenhower when the governor appears in a television interview in Cleveland.

Meanwhile, another 11th hour pro-Scranton movement budded in Washington with announcement by former GOP National Chairman Sen. Hugh Scott and Rep. Robert J. Corbett, R-Pa., of a congressional committee to push Scranton to center stage in the GOP race.

Scott and Corbett, chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, said in a statement that "the present situation in the Republican party" jeopardizes the seats of at least 30 Republican members of Congress as well as the election chances of GOP candidates at every level of government."

Mississippi May End Prohibition

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) —The Mississippi Legislature Saturday night cleared the liquor referendum bill which may end a half century of prohibition in the state.

The Senate approved the compromise measure 26-16, a few minutes after it was okayed in the House 72-34, in the closing hours of the session.

The referendum was set for November.

NORMANDY INVASION

Eisenhower Tells Of D-Day Decision

"Decisions in the Dark."

This is the first of 16 thrilling articles by General Dwight D. Eisenhower who recently returned to the scene of the events that radically altered the course of World War II 20 years ago — the invasion at Normandy. In his first article, which will be found on Page 3-B in today's Monroe Morning World, Eisenhower tells how he made the decision to launch the D-Day invasion on June 6, 1944, although a storm was raging outside his command post in England.

EISENHOWER

He tells how he considered the penalties of making the wrong decision, a bad decision, a reckless decision. Then he tells what he did after his moment of decision — during those long hours of waiting for the troops to land on the coast of Normandy; and also how the departure of a group of paratroopers brought him close to tears.

You'll enjoy this great series in the Monroe Morning World — 16 in all which will give you the first information ever published on many of the vital behind-the-scene decisions.

In some of the other daily installments you will learn why the Germans didn't believe the allies would try to land in such bad weather; what Ike thought about British General Montgomery; an insight into the memorable "old blood and guts" George Patton, and the story of Winston Churchill who wanted to go along on the invasion.

Senate Halt Strengthens Cloture Vote

Group Sets Date For 'Showdown' On Amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Saturday postponed for a day its showdown on halting a Southern filibuster against the civil rights bill. In doing so, leaders apparently strengthened their chance for winning a stop-the-talk order.

By unanimous consent, the chamber agreed to vote Tuesday on three Republican-sponsored amendments to the House-passed civil rights bill which has been under Senate debate for 72 sessions.

To make way for these votes, the Democratic majority leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, postponed from Saturday until Monday the introduction of a petition to invoke the Senate's seldom-used debate-limitation rule—known as cloture.

CLOTURE MOTION

This means the showdown will come Wednesday, instead of Tuesday, on this motion which would limit each senator to a one hour's talk on all amendments and the bill itself. This requires a two-thirds majority, presumably 66, since one of the 100 members, Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., is ailing and unlikely to vote.

Since it's unlikely each of the 100 members would avail himself of his full time, adoption of cloture probably would mean a decision by or before June 20 on the measure which the House approved Feb. 10 on a 290-130 vote and which was offered in the Senate March 9.

Under the agreement for preliminary voting accepted in a short session Saturday, four hours of debate will be permitted on each of the three amendments.

To be taken up first Monday will be one by Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., to make jury trials mandatory in all criminal contempt of court actions growing out of the bill, except those involving voting rights. Morton offered this earlier and it was defeated 46-45.

A Tuesday morning vote on the Morton proposal is to be followed by debate and votes the same day on amendments by Sens. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., and Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa.

Cotton's amendment would limit the equal opportunity employment provisions of the bill to businesses having 100 or more employes. The House bill would start enforcement at this level but ultimately would lower the limit to 25 employes.

Hickenlooper's proposal would strike out provisions for federal grants for training school personnel to deal with problems arising from desegregation.

Mansfield denied there has been any deal with Republicans to grant the preliminary voting in exchange for promises to support cloture. But he acknowledged to newsmen before Saturday's session that leaders hope "if this unanimous consent agreement is adopted we can get the votes or cloture."

Bush Gains Texas GOP's Senate Brand

Beginner Shows Signs Of Snowing Old Campaigner

DALLAS (UPI) — George Bush, a Connecticut Yankee turned Texas oilman, Saturday night won the Texas Republican senatorial nomination in a runoff and set the stage for a major Goldwater-Johnson policy clash in the President's home state next November.

Yaleman Bush, who has lived in Texas 16 of his 39 years, beat fellow Houston oilman Jack Cox handily in the bitterly-fought contest during which both agreed only that they liked Barry Goldwater.

OPPOSE LIBERAL

Bush will oppose liberal democratic Sen. Ralph Yarborough in November. Yarborough has the backing of President Johnson.

Bush is the son of the former Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut. He came to Texas in the Navy in World War II, liked what he saw, and returned as a war hero to go into the oil pipeline business in Houston.

In another major liberal-conservative runoff in Texas, conservative Joe Pool of Dallas, the incumbent congressmen-at-large, took an unbeatable lead over Robert Baker of Houston, a Lyndon Johnson liberal.

With 167 of the state's 254 counties reporting, Bush had 44,008 votes to 22,202 for Cox.

With 221 counties reporting, Pool had 295,036 votes to 228,340 for Baker.

The turnout was disappointingly small but Republicans were elated because their emerging state party had its first statewide runoff in history.

The runoff elections were spiced by seizure of the ballot boxes by court order in Crystal City, the "Spinach Capital of The World," where Latin Americans are pitted against Anglos."

Million Dollar Motel In South Monroe Slated

Negotiations to build a million dollar-plus Ramada Inn motel in southeast section of Monroe have been completed between James W. Moore of Monroe and Moody Brothers of Houston, Tex.

In making the announcement Saturday, Moore said initial construction calls for 200 units at about $6,000 each. He said the total cost would be at least $1,120,000 and could be expected to go higher.

The motel will be located near the intersection of Interstate Highway 20 and the new U. S. 165 by-pass on a 30 acre plot, 10 of which the motel will cover.

Apartment houses and office buildings will be constructed on the rest of the area, Moore said.

Alvin Moody and Dan Moody are well known in Texas as builders of motels, apartment buildings and shopping centers. Their most recent project is a new 125 room Ramada Inn opened in February at Alexandria.

Supervision of the Monroe motel will be under Jack Collins, general manager of Gulf Coast Ramada Inns, Inc. who is also connected with other hotel and motel interests of the Moody brothers. A local manager also will be hired.

The motel will include banquet facilities, dining room and cocktail lounge and swimming pool.

Moore said construction would coincide with completion of the I-20 which he said is expected by June 1, 1965. About six months will be required to finish the motel, he said, meaning first work is expected to begin in January.

He said the location of the motel at the east - west and north-south highways would afford fastest access to the proposed Civic Auditorium, Olin Mathieson Mills, Northeast State College, the airport and downtown Monroe.

AN UNIDENTIFIED woman is rescued from her car after she was trapped inside by a tree that was toppled from a renegade storm at Jacksonville, Fla., Saturday. The woman was not seriously injured after being trapped in car for more than an hour. Several trees were toppled by the storm and several persons reported roof damage. (AP Wirephoto)

High Winds, Rains Pelt Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A squall line with winds estimated at 75 to 100 miles an hour cut a swatch through Jacksonville on Saturday, lifting roofs, overturning cars and toppling a 300-foot radio tower.

Electrical power was cut off to huge portions of the city, and police estimated that 1,000 wires were down.

INJURIES LIGHT

However, apparently there were no serious injuries.

Several roofs were lifted off and others damaged. One house slid off its foundation.

Signs were blown down, at least one on top of an occupied car. Three persons trapped inside another car by electrical wires were safely extracted.

Trees were snapped and uprooted.

John Williams said his wife was caught in her car when it stalled in an underpass as the water rose, and she had to crawl out of the window to safety.

Two persons received minor injuries when their house trailer was blown over.

About two inches of rain fell and hail up to three-quarter inches battered some sections.

A Weather Bureau meteorologist, John Watson, said he had reliable reports that the winds reached 75 miles an hour. The fact that the tower blew over indicated that the winds probably reached 100 m.p.h., he said.

The storm was caused by the merging of a tropical depression that crossed the state from the Gulf of Mexico merging with a low-pressure system from the Mississippi Valley, the Weather Bureau said.

Tornado warnings had been issued for parts of northern Florida, but not for Jacksonville.

Mostly Clear Skies Forecast

Skies over the Twin Cities and the area will continue to be clear to partly cloudy with little chance of rainfall.

A high pressure area centered over the Gulf of Mexico is expected to dominate most of the mid-South and little change is forecast for the next two days.

WARM

High temperatures today and Monday are forecast to be in the high 80's and low 90's with the low tonight around 64 - 68.

Saturday's high was 87 degrees. The low was 66. No rainfall was reported.

Winds will be variable 5 - 15 miles per hour.

NEW YORK APPEARANCE

LBJ Airs Surety Of Passing Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson made a quick trip to New York Saturday and predicted to wildly cheering union adherents that "We will pass the strongest civil rights bill in American history."

Moving briskly about Manhattan's west side garment district in a four-hour visit, Johnson received an enthusiastic and sometimes thunderous welcome in the streets and in formal appearances before members of the AFL-CIO International Ladies Garment Workers Union ILGWU.

POVERTY WAR

In his main address at a union rally, Johnson coupled his war against poverty with his hopes for civil rights.

"We have mounted attack upon the final fortresses of poverty," he said. "Your children will live to see the day when poverty has been transformed from a real menace to a remote memory."

Then Johnson raised his voice, stressing each word against an intermittent din of applause from 1,500 frankly partisan garment workers, to declare:

"We will continue the 100-year struggle to give every American — of every race and color — equal opportunity in American society. We have proposed, and under the leadership of Sen. Humphrey on this platform, we will pass the strongest civil rights bill in American history."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., majority whip of the Senate and a possibility for the nomination as Johnson's vice presidential running mate, accompanied the chief executive on his visit here.

Johnson went on to say, however, that a civil rights bill will not in itself insure racial justice.

"Now is the time to look beyond that bill — to struggle to eliminate the heavy weight of discrimination in the hearts and homes of people — to give to members of minorities the training, the education, the housing which will enable them to pass through the doors of opportunity," he said.

The President emphasized that he expects rapid progress in civil rights, as well as medical care for the aged, minimum wage legislation and antipoverty proposals.

Royal Couple In Car Wreck

LONDON (AP)—A limousine driven by Prince Philip with Queen Elizabeth II riding in the back seat was in collision Saturday night with a small family-size car. The royal couple escaped injury, as did the driver of the other car.

The accident occurred near Maidenhead, Berkshire, on the road from Twyford to Windsor Castle, where the royal couple is spending the weekend.

Party Seeks Pilot Ejected From Craft

WASHINGTON (AP)— An unarmed U. S. jet reconnaisance plane was shot down by Communist ground fire in central Laos, the government announced Saturday night.

The American pilot parachuted safely and a search is under way for him.

In reporting this, the State Department said that the U. S. government is now consulting with the royal Laos government on what steps to take to protect the American picture-taking flights over the Red-conquered Plaine des Jarres.

The State Department announced on May 21 that unarmed U. S. reconnaissance planes were flying over central Laos at the request of neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma.

GAIN INTELLIGENCE

It was explained that the flights were started to give Phouma information on disposition of Communist Pathet Lao forces which drove the neutralist government's troops from the Plaine des Jarres in an outbreak of violence which broke the Geneva agreement neutralizing Laos.

It was subsequently learned that the flights were being made by RF8 Crusaders flying in Paris from the carrier Kitty Hawk in the South China Sea off the Viet Nam coast.

The department said Saturday night the flights will continue.

The department did not disclose the name of the pilot downed by the Red Forces in the Plaine des Jarres area.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the downing of the American plane is a serious matter but he declined to speculate whether U. S. armed escort would be used for the reconnaisance flights now.

It was learned on May 22 that one of the reconnaissance planes had been struck by ground fire but had returned safely to the carrier after suffering only minor damage. The State Department announced the reconnaissance was carried out successfully despite the opposition.

Neutralists Hold During Debates Of Heavy Guns

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)— Neutralist troops stood fast during exchanges of artillery and mortar fire with Pathet Lao forces in Phou Koutt on Saturday.

The firing was a continuation of fighting that erupted at Phou Koutt on Friday. The neutralists, commanded by Gen. Kong Le, took Phou Koutt last week in a counterattack against pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

There was no word reaching Vientiane on casualties.

Phou Koutt is about 1½ miles north of highway 7, which leads westward from the Communist-controlled Plaine Des Jarres, 110 miles north of Vientiane.

Military specialists expressed the belief that the Pathet Lao attack on Phou Koutt was a final effort to sweep the neutralists off the highway before monsoon rains get too heavy.

Kong Le's forces are fighting in support of Prince Souvanna Phouma, the neutralist Premier, who is linked in a coalition government with Laos' rightist faction, headed by Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

STUCK SEED VANISHES

Watermelon Eater Wants Another Go

TALLADEGA, Ala. (UPI) —"I ate the whole piece and it just started . . ."

What it started was a big scare for the Edward Martin family.

Ten - year - old Michael Martin just finished his Little League baseball practice Friday and he and the rest of the team were treated to a watermelon by the adult managers.

Michael said he had himself "a big piece" and when he finished eating "it just started. I began choking."

A father of one of the other boys rushed Michael home and the boy's father took him to a hospital where it was determined that Michael inhaled either a watermelon seed or a piece of watermelon into his lungs.

The father drove him to an Anniston hospital where a specialist, Dr. Wade Brannon, performed surgery, a bronchostomy.

But the seed or watermelon piece wasn't even in Michael by this time. Dr. Brannon confirmed it had been there but Michael apparently dislodged whatever it was on the trip to Anniston.

Michael said his uncomfortable experience won't stop him from eating watermelon.

"I like it too much," he said at his home Saturday. "I'm going to keep on eating it. I feel all right now."

AT WEST MONROE ARENA

Shrine Club Slates Rodeo

Repeating last year's successful midsummer rodeo schedule, Dr. Wayne Gray, president of the Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club, has announced the dates of July 15 through July 18 for the presentation of the annual R-C-A championship rodeo, which the club will sponsor for the fourth consecutive year.

Final plans were made the past week by the West Monroe Riding Club, producers of the show, to bring back some of the leading cowboys in the rodeo circuit to perform for local audiences.

Starting time for the four evening performances at the West Monroe Riding club arena on Harrell Road in West Monroe will be 8 o'clock, according to Rip Pipes, Rodeo Association president.

Shuman Nolan, chairman of promotion for the show, has stated that the purse money for participants has been set at $7500, in addition to the valuable trophy saddles which will go to winners in each event, as well as the girls' barrel race.

Produced under the direction and approval of the Rodeo Cowboys Association of America, this year's show will again present rodeo stock from the ranch of Tommy Steiner, one of the largest rodeo producers in the country. Representing the Steiner interests here will be Ralph Collier, who promises to bring to West Monroe a full complement of the toughest rodeo stock available anywhere.

Returning as master of ceremonies will be Tom Hadley of Kerrville, Texas, whose popularity with rodeo audiences across the country was evidenced here last summer.

The earlier mid-summer schedule for the rodeo proved so successful last year, according to Nolan, that the Rodeo Association is particularly pleased to have been able to present the show at this time again, with Wednesday through Saturday performances. Contracts for the star attractions are being completed and will be announced shortly.

Meanwhile local businesses and rodeo enthusiasts are lending their backing to the annual venture with orders for reserved seats already approaching capacity, Nolan stated.

Youth To Have Sanity Hearing For Slayings

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI)—A youth who claimed he shot and killed five men in Michigan, Kentucky, Nevada and Indiana will undergo examination to determine if he is sane.

The court-appointed attorney for Larry Lee Ranes, 19, Kalamazoo, said Saturday he first wanted to determine "whether Ranes committed all the crimes he has confessed to "and then would seek the sanity hearing. Attorney Eugene Fields said he conferred with Ranes in the youth's cell in Kalamazoo County Jail and "he told me a lot of things."

Ranes also told police "a lot of things," they said.

Teachers, community theatre directors and students of speech and drama will benefit from the theatre festival program, which provides NLSC students an opportunity to produce summer plays at Strauss Playhouse, home of the Monroe Little Theatre.

The music camp extends to junior and senior high school bandsmen and twirlers an opportunity to study during the summer session on the college campus. In addition to daily practice sessions and concerts, participants will be provided with a program of supervised activities, including student recitals, movies, parties, swimming, bowling and a stunt night.

Judges Select Newellton As 'Cleanest City'

Newellton is the cleanest city in the Fifth District according to three judges in a recent contest sponsored by the Federated Garden Clubs of Louisiana.

Ruston was the runnerup in the contest and Wisner was third, Mrs. E. W. Causey of Ruston, Fifth District chairman, announced.

The judges, in commenting on the winner, said "Newellton was really a garden spot. Not a scrap of paper or tin can was in sight. Small parks and gardens in the business area were well planned and cared for."

So much rubbish and debris had been hauled away that a new dump was necessary, said one report, and an oldtimer remarked that some of it had been there since the Civil War.

Three Monroe women, Mrs. R. L. Gibson, Mrs. Joe Smith and Mrs. J. W. Folson, were the judges.

GOV. PAUL Johnson of Mississippi is shown addressing the legislature in Jackson Saturday as he served notice a special session would be called to deal with private school bills. (AP Wirephoto)

Mississippi Sets Session For Schools

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) —The Mississippi Legislature inched closer toward final adjournment Saturday facing a special private school session in only 10 days.

As the 22-week-old regular session drew to a close, Gov. Paul Johnson appeared before the House and Senate to tell legislators he would call the special session June 17 to consider legislation to make a system of private schools backed by state money possible.

Johnson made no mention of segregation, but said the people, teachers, school officials and others needed to know the decision on the proposal as soon as possible so they could plan for next school year.

The package was designed to sidestep effect of expected court-ordered desegregation in Jackson, Biloxi and Leake County.

Most of the Saturday legisative activity was devoted to ironing out differences between House and Senate versions of a host of bills which already had cleared both chambers. Many of these were appropriations measures that had to win approval in order to finance operation of government for the biennium beginning July 1.

There also was the local option liquor hassle and an open primary election bill hanging as the Saturday business began.

In his brief speeches, separately to the House first and then the Senate, Johnson urged the "immediate appointment of the study committee that this work might begin without delay."

Copies of the four bills and two constitutional amendments in the package were distributed to members of the legislature to give them a head start on it when a special study committee approved by the legislature reports its findings on the school matters.

Scenic Snapshots To Win Cash Prizes

Rain-splashed streets . . impressive landscapes . . . or abstractions in miniature.

Any of these situations might be the subject for a snapshot that could win you a $1,000 cash prize in the Scenics and "Table - Tops" classification of the 1964 Newspaper National Snapshot Awards.

Competition in the contest, sponsored by the Morning World and News-Star begins the week of June 15 and extends through week of August 3.

Scenics and "Table-Tops" is just one of four contest classifications, in black-and - white. Other classifications include: Babies and Children, Animals and Pets, and Teen-agers and Adults.

The Scenics and "Table-Tops" category spotlights things, rather than people. Scenics can be of rain-splashed streets, shadow patterns, footsteps in the snow, wind-blown trees, impressive landscapes, or even buildings. People may be in the picture to emphasize a mood, but the emphasis must be on the scene.

"Table-Tops" are included in the same class. These pictures, whether an abstraction or a world in miniature, are judged mainly on interest, lighting arrangement, and artistry.

Vacations are ideal for taking scenic pictures. Scenics can be shot from an airliner thousands of feet in the air . . . of cloud formations, a sunset, the terrain, an ocean or lake, a haze-covered city.

They can also be made from the ground or the water. Snapshots of such landmarks as the United Nations Building, the Statute of Liberty, the Golden Gate Bridge, or Boulder Dam have all won awards in many photo contests.

In "Table-Top" photography, you can set up a real life scene in miniature, such as a railroad wreck or a storm at sea, and with proper lighting make it dramatically realistic. "Table-Tops" is an absorbing and creative facet of photography. The more creative you are, the better your chances of copping a cash prize.

There will be weekly awards of $5 for first place, $3 for second, and $2 for third in each of the four classifications, plus a grand prize for the winners of the event at the end of the contest.

Remember anyone can win. It's easy. Only amateur photographers are eligible to participate in the contest.

WANTS LEGAL ACTION

NAACP Asks Federal Aid For Student At Ole Miss

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The NAACP asked a federal judge here Saturday to order the state of Mississippi to get out of the path of a Negro teenager seeking entrance to the University of Mississippi.

A suit asked Dist. Judge Harold Cox to issue a temporary restraining order against the College Board from interference with the registration of Cleveland Donald, 18, of Jackson.

Cox, according to civil rights lawyer Derrick Bell, refused to immediately act on the eleventh hour request because of a crowded docket and other commitments.

He has been "provisionally accepted" to the summer term at Ole Miss, where racial barriers were cracked for the first time in 1962 with the admission of Negro James Meredith.

In the suit, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People contended Donald would suffer irreparable injury and harm if not allowed to register Tuesday for the term which begins Wednesday.

Bell told The Associated Press Cox requested affidavits supporting the irreparable injury charge be filed here Monday and a decision was expected Tuesday on the request.

The suit specifically asked the court to prohibit the board from denying or postponing Donald's registration, contending a delay would result in the youth's missing classroom instruction in the accelerated summer courses.

Meredith, a Kosciusko ex-airman, also had attempted to enter Ole Miss during a summer session but was delayed until a fall term where he enrolled under the protection of federal troops after a night of rioting where two persons were killed and scores injured.

Meredith eventually graduated from Ole Miss.

The college board asked the court earlier this week to hold a hearing on Donald's application pending a review of the scope of the federal action ordering Meredith's admission.

The college board said the order requiring the university to admit its first Negro was not a "class action."

In the NAACP petition filed Saturday, attorneys contended the board's motion "for a construction of the injunction entered in the Meredith case is not applicable here since plaintiff (Donald) does not seek injunctive relief based on the Meredith order, but initiates a new action of his own."

Judge Cox set next Friday for a hearing in Biloxi on the Donald case and Bell said it would be held regardless of the nature of Cox' decision on the restraining order.

AIRING SET FOR ETHICS

Rep. Gibbs To Call Vote Tuesday On Teachers' Pay

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A showdown looms in the Legislature this week on the big issues of the session — teachers' pay and a code of ethics.

The fifth week of the 60-day session starts Monday when the house meets at 10 a.m. The Senate resumes at 5 p.m.

Chairman Lawrence Gibbs of the House Education Committee said he will call up for a floor vote Tuesday the teacher pay raise bill—part of a $48.8 million pay raise.

Chairman B. B. Rayburn of the Senate Finance Committee called for 9 a.m. Tuesday a hearing on similar teacher pay raise legislation. Rayburn is from Bogalusa.

The administration - backed bill for state employes and elected officials will get an airing in the Senate Judiciary C Committee at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Chairman Jamar Adcock, Monroe, said.

A barrage of amendments may hit the code of ethics in committee. Leander H. Perez, Plaquemines Parish political boss, promised some aimed at what he called unwise combinations of judicial, legislative and executive powers in the legislation.

Gov. John McKeithen's House leaders, meanwhile, searched for votes to get rid of an unwanted amendment to his college student loan bill, which ran into trouble Thursday in the House Education Committee.

The LSU Alumni Federation threw its support behind the administration in the issue.

The bill was amended to allow the present legislative scholarships to continue. Administration leaders fear this crippled the bill by taking away needed funds.

After the House session Monday, the House Judiciary B Committee will hold hearings on four bills concerning electric cooperatives.

The main bill is authored by Reps. Lantz Womack, Franklin Parish, and Robert Munson, Rapides. It would bring electric cooperatives under jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

The House has 25 bills ready for passage, and the Senate 23. In addition, the Senate has on the calendar 39 bills which could be called up at any time for passage.

BIBLE SCHOOL SLATED

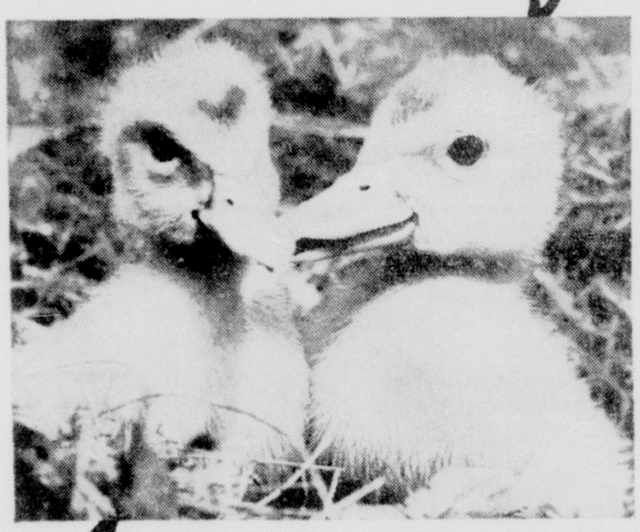

DELHI (Special) — The First Baptist Church will hold vacation Bible school each morning from 8-11 a.m. June 15-26. Preparation day will be June 12. After a short session at the church the children will be taken to Sun Camp Park for a picnic.

Johnson Asks U.S. Compassion For Helpless

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson urged Americans on Saturday to have the courage to show compassion for the weak, the helpless and the handicapped.

In an address marking the 100th anniversary of the world's first college for the deaf, Johnson called compassion "the great cementing influence" in the nation.

His remarks were prepared for the centennial banquet of Gallaudet College, a federally supported liberal arts college with an enrollment of 630 deaf students. Johnson presented the college with the 1964 award from the President's Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped.

The President linked compassion with morality and education as the three pillars of U. S. society and said for Americans today "the great adventure" is to preserve and strengthen them.

Memphis Plant Trying To Cut Waste Toxicity

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Velsicol Corp., announced Saturday it will spend $100,000 for equipment to make waste from its Memphis chemical plant non-toxic.

However, the plant stuck to its stand that chemical wastes from the plant were not responsible for major fish kills in the lower Mississippi River.

Bernard Lorant, Velsicol vice president in charge of research, said the company was making the change "so we can get along with people."

Health officials had charged that toxic wastes from the plant taken to city dumps and washed off by rain, pollute local streams and the Mississippi River.

Gov. Romney Presses Essex Negotiators Into Settlement After 99 Days

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — In their fourth night-long bargaining session since strike violence brought out more than 800 troops nine days ago, negotiators reached agreement Saturday in the 99-day Essex Wire Corp. strike at Hillsdale.

Gov. George W. Romney pressed the chiefs of Essex Wire and the striking International Union of Electrical Workers in to staying closeted in his office until terms of a four-year contract were worked out.

IUE Local 810 members, who struck Feb. 28 to win a first contract at Essex, will vote Sunday on ratification.

Romney said, however, one provision was that Essex began limiting employment Saturday night "to regular employes in the employ of the company before the strike commenced." This had been reported one of the prime issues, and Romney said Essex will employ IUE men "until all such employes have been recalled for work."

"If the terms are good, we'll ratify it," said Leland Aldrich, one of the 180 IUE members who struck Essex on Feb. 28.

Aldrich and other members of the AFL-CIO-affiliated union are meeting Sunday afternoon for a ratification vote on the settlement.

Will they ratify it?

"It is unthinkable that any of the parties concerned now would take a position contrary to the agreement reached here," Romney said.

Romney, beaming, announced the settlement with Essex President Walter Probst and IUE National President James Carey was summoned from Washington by Romney to join the talks Friday night.

In Hillsdale, Ted Nolan, IUE International representative, revealed the contract agreement has a four-year term. The union had sought a two-to-three year term, he said. While he did not reveal other details, he called the proposed pact "apparently good" because of the four-year clause.

The 35,000 Hillsdale county residents for the first time in nine days were freed from heavy National Guard controls.

Romney lifted a 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on the county, and National Guardsmen began removing troop units to cut the manpower from 869 to fewer than 300 guardsmen. Romney had ordered this as well as reduction in the state police force from 60 to 30 troopers.

"We don't want to upset any applecarts. We cannot reveal the contents until the membership has had a chance to vote on it," said George Gould, IUE International representative.

Romney described his role with labor and management as "bringing them together and insisting that they ought to stay and stay until a settlement was reached."

John Dobbins, Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. youth secretary and day camp director, announced the dates for the Y.M.C.A.-Y.W.C.A. camp program for this summer.

Six weeks of camping will begin on June 15th for boys and girls 6-12 years of age. Approximately 500 campers are expected from all sections of Ouachita Parish. Forsythe Park will again serve as camp headquarters. The Swayze swimming pool, Moon Lake, Phillips Bayou, Paces Lake and other areas will be used in this year's program in addition to the park.

The Swayze pool will be used for aquatic instruction and recreational swimming. Each camper will be instructed according to the National Y.M.C.A. aquatic program. Last year over 200 campers passed swim tests.

The campers will be divided into groups of 10 to 12 each of the same age. In these small groups, campers can plan their days to insure fun for all.

This year's program will include crafts, boating, water skiing, trips, archery, hiking, fishing, devotionals, athletics and canoeing for the first time. Each camper will be given instruction on canoe safety before the activity is begun. In addition to canoeing in camp, the day camp boys desiring to do so, will take two week - end canoe trips beginning above Sterlington and ending at the Monroe Boat Dock.

The camp will be under the direction of John Dobbins. H. E. Ruppert of Ouachita High School will again serve as boys program director, Miss Bess Sharp, Y.W.C.A. executive secretary, will serve as girls program director. The aquatic program will be under the direction of Dervis Tippen.

Soil Districts Honor Solon

Congressman Otto E. Passman of the Fifth District was honored Saturday with a luncheon at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club for his "distinguished service" to the Soil and Water Conservation Districts of Louisiana.

Passman, who received praise from all leaders in this field, was presented a plaque from the state association by the four districts of Northeast Louisiana which are East Carroll - Madison, Boeuf River, Northeast, and Tensas - Concordia.

Congressman Passman told the group of approximately 40 leaders in the conservation field that "no one can accomplish anything alone."

He said he did not know of any group in the United States today that is any more unselfish in their efforts than those of the soil and conservation group.

Pointing to the accomplishments of this area, Passman said:

"Working with you and the officials of this district, we have been able to bring into the district $175,228,700 for flood control from 1947 to 1964.

"This was accomplished by all of us working together. And by all of us working together we have made great strides for this area."

Passman pointed out that the $175,228,700 resulted in a return for this district in excess of one billion dollars in the amount of good that was accomplished.

He then pointed out that a tremendous amount of the money spent on flood control is spent in seven southern states of which Louisiana is one. For every dollar spent in the seven states for flood control, he said, there is a return on the investment of $5. For every dollar spend in the field of soil conservation, he said, there is a return of $6, showing that the nation more than receives its money's worth in those two fields of endeavor.

The Fifth District congressman emphasized to the group that "I am a conservative and my record shows that. I have never voted for an appropriation I thought was a waste of money and I never will."

Passman cited the need for preserving soil and water resources and predicted that within a short time water conservation laws would be needed.

"Personally, I don't know of anything of more importance than helping and protecting our soil and water resources," he said. "And I certainly would like to tell you that it has been a privelege of serving this district in Congress and doing what little I could for you and the other people of our area."

He again praised all for their help and said "what we have accomplished here would not have been possible without your help as well as all the other people of this district who have worked so untiringly for the good of Northeast Louisiana."

Bagley pointed out that Passman had served 17½ years in Congress and was unopposed for another term.

"He has represented his district extremely well, has worked so untiringly for its good, and has always considered our needs in everything," Bagley said of Passman. He said the congressman had been the greatest friend the soil and water conservation groups ever had.

"He has been 100 per cent behind us in everything," Bagley said, pointing out that it was through Passman's efforts before a committee that funds, originally cut from the appropriations bill which would have affected the technical aspects of the soil and water program, were restored fully.

Others appearing on the program included Joe H. Dixon, Monroe; Ed Perry of Waterproof Area Two vice president of the LASCD; Andrew Yerger, Tallulah, secretary - treasurer of the LASCD, and Joe Martin, state conservationist of Alexandria.

Martin also praised Passman for his work in this field and said in his opinion that the future of the U.S. depends on how well "we take care of our soil and water."

He said the soil conservation districts was the greatest movement in this field ever inaugurated and said they came into being through the vote of the people. He also praised the board of supervisors in the various districts and pointed out that all serve without pay.

State's Junior Chamber Chosen Best In Nation

The Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce has been judged the best in the United States, according to Jack Murphy, president of the Monroe chapter.

Murphy said he was notified Saturday that the Louisiana organization had won the honor. The Monroe chapter was recently denoted as Louisiana's best chapter during the state convention in Alexandria.

This is the first time the Louisiana goup has won the nation's top Jaycee honors, Murphy said.

As a result, Louisiana will march first in the parade of states at the national Jaycee convention in Dallas. The convention is scheduled June 22-26. Miss Louisiana, Linda Baucum of Springhill, will also ride in the parade on a special float.

Louisiana and Colorado, last year's winners, were in a personal challenge contest. As a result of losing, Colorado will have to march in the parade with a Confederate flag singing "Dixie".

President of the Louisiana Jaycees is Charlie Hickman of Alexandria.

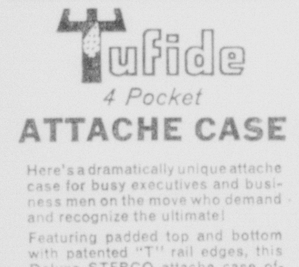

The first-place selection was made by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce executive committee. A number of states were tied and the final decision was made on the basis of percentage of membership increase.

U.S. LOAN PROGRAM

Rep. Passman Asks Cooperatives' Aid

WINNSBORO (Special) — Congressman Otto E. Passman told members of the Northeast Louisiana Power Cooperative he heoped they would support a plan to "permit the government to break even" on loans to rural electric cooperatives.

Speaking at the group's annual membership meeting here Saturday night, Passman said the government has to pay an average of four per cent to borrow its money. Cooperatives borrow money from the government at two per cent.

"I hope you will beat the government to the draw and support a plan that would not provide a profit to the government on the interest rate, but at least permit the government to break even," he said.

Supporting such a plan would, in Passman's words, "remove a stigma presently stamped upon our rural electric cooperatives in that the people are constantly hollering that you are subsidized."

"Of course, we cannot successfully refute the charge," he added.

The Fifth District representative said he supported the two per cent rate because he regarded it in the circumstances existing as being justified.

"When the government entered into the two per cent rate, it was borrowing money at an average interest rate of one and a half percent," Passman said.

He said he was firmly convinced that raising the interest rate "would serve the best interest of all concerned."

Passman recalled that when the first electric co-op was started in the state in 1937, 27 years ago, less than two per cent of the state's rural homes and farms had electricity. Today, he said, the co-ops serve probably more than a half million rural people in the state on more than 25,000 miles of service lines.

The co-ops provide 99 per cent of rural area electric coverage, he said.

"I am acutely aware that the rural electrification program — for providing electricity in our rural areas — is a vital force in our economy, he said. "I reject the brand of 'socialism' that individuals and interests endeavor to place on this program."

Turning to foreign aid, Passman said billions of dollars are being sent each year to nearly every country of the world. He said this year America is granting aid to 100 governments.

Many of projects (and subprojects) being financed with American money have but little practical justification, he said, adding "an observation which is even more true insofar as the matter of serving the best interests of the United States is concerned."

203 GET DEGREES

Kyser Addresses Northeast Grads

Adults are going to have to spend more time in their continuing education than ever before, Dr. John S. Kyser, president of Northwestern State College reminded members of the spring graduating class at Northeast State College here Saturday night.

"Today and tomorrow an adult who refuses to reconsider an opinion is akin to a blind man going into a familiar room where the furniture has been completely rearranged," President Kyser said.

And science isn't the answer to all of man's problems, he observed. "Art — the art of persuading humans to adopt given behavior — must always be the final arbiter of human destiny.

"Has it not been relatively easy to invent nuclear murder devices, but impossible to get assurance that men will not misbehave and use them?" he asked.

Heading the list as the top honor graduate was Ouida Greer Dillingham of Monroe, who received the B. A. in Elementary Education degree. She completed her college work with an overall 3.89 of a possible 4.0 grade point average.

Others honored for outstanding academic achievement included:

Mary Deal Wilson, Start; Veronica Worley, Monroe; Rosalyn Frances Thweatt, Natchez, Miss.; Thomas H. Ferrell, Winnfield; Glenda Kathryn Lewis, Lake Providence; Thomas L. Carpenter Jr., Bastrop; Toma Genevieve Coleman, Monroe.

Margaret Jan Busby Corder, Chase; Billie Sue Dixon, Monroe; Rita Dianne Garrett, Monroe; Stephen E. Hamm, West Monroe; Patricia Ann Hixson, Urania; Helen Prickett Jackson, West Monroe; James I. McGough; Sarah Beth Sloan, Bastrop, and Nelda Anne Stewart, West Monroe.

Four of the honor graduates—Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Corder, Miss Dixon and Miss Sloan—are among the College's first 14 graduates to receive the bachelor's degree in nursing.

Another — Miss Garrett — is the first woman in Northeast State history to receive a degree in physics.

His Excellency, the Most Rev. Charles P. Greco, Bishop of Alexandria, delivered the baccalaureate sermon earlier in the day. Bishop Greco cautioned of the shipwrecks of life and gave numerous illustrations of how educated people have fallen to the gutter "because they launched out into life's deep without God."

"The most miserable man I ever met was the man who had lost his God," Bishop Greco declared.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Summer Reading Club Underway

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Last Monday the summer reading club sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library opened with hundreds of children registering the first day. This summer promises to be one of the busiest that the Library has ever had and we are delighted with the use that the children are making of the Library facilities. Reading during the summer months is one of the most profitable activities in which a child can engage and we urge all parents to see that their children participate.

On June first the book collection of the Library stood at 94,074 books, which means that we shall have to make a gain of 1000 books per month for the remainder of the year in order to reach our goal of 1 book per capita by January first. It is going to be difficult, but I still hope to achieve this goal. New books added during the past week, show a variety of material. In the field of fiction there are books to appeal to many readers. "In Vivo" by Mildred Savage is an exciting story based on the manufacture of the wonder drugs. It is well written and will appeal to a large audience. "The Fair" by Robert Nathan is set in England in the period just after the death of King Arthur. The author knows his period and the descriptions are good, but the plot fails to materialize. This is a disappointing book from one of our outstanding modern writers. "Knight's Honor" by Roberta Gellis is also an English historical novel. This one has it's setting in the year 1149 and is an account of the struggle of the English Barons to take the throne of England from Stephen and give it to Henry of Anjou. The author has drawn an exciting picture of the period and there will be many eager readers for this story. Novels with a Louisiana setting are always popular and we have two new ones this week; "Brent Acres" by Cynthia Jones and "The Creole" by Ray La Scola. Both of these books will be enjoyed.

There are several books of intrigue and suspense. "The Day of the Arrow" by Philip Loraine has it's setting on an estate in Southern France and is a story of suspense and black magic. "The Hand of Mary Constable" by Paul Gallico is an account of how the communists tried to use ghosts to persuade a prominent professor to defect to their side. Alexander Hero, the ghost breaker, foils them. "A Chosen Sparrow" by Vera Caspary is a horror story of Nazi oppression and it's aftermath, written by the author of "Laura." "A Feast of Freedom" is another political satire written by Leonard Wibberley. This one is concerned with the adventures of the populace of two islands which secured their freedom prematurely and of what happened when they did.

A Tradition At The Academy

Court Decisions And Religion At Annapolis

By TOM STUCKEY

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Church on Sunday morning is as much a part of midshipman life at the U.S. Naval Academy as Wednesday dress parades and Saturday football games.

Midshipmen have been required to attend worship services ever since the academy was established in 1845.

A recent Supreme Court ruling that compulsory religious exercises in public schools are unconstitutional brought protests about religious requirements at the Navy, Army and Air Force academies.

The Department of Defense launched a review of the situation. It has not yet announced a decision.

However, Rear Adm. Charles S. Minter Jr., superintendent of the Naval Academy, says he is "pretty well satisfied that nothing we are doing here is illegal."

"There is nothing inconsistent with the Supreme Court decision, which I think applies to a totally different thing," he said.

Minter is convinced that religious training and should be continued.

TRAINING

"It's part of the responsibility that the academy has for the training of future officers," he said.

Every midshipman is required to attend services on Sunday either at the Navy chapel or at one of the Annapolis churches.

About 1,800 attend the Protestant service and another 1,200 the Catholic. In addition, more than 1,000 go to Protestant, Orthodox and Jewish churches in town.

The Mass usually is conducted by one of the two Catholic chaplains, Capt. R. A. Cahill and Cmdr. M. P. Sullivan. Midshipmen take part as ushers and servers at the altar.

The Protestant service began largely as an Episcopal service, but other elements have been added through the years.

"Prayers and readings from other faiths have been incorporated," Capt. James E. Reaves, senior chaplain, says. "And there are naval elements too, such as the presentation of colors and the Midshipman's Prayer."

A sermon is delivered by one of the three Protestant chaplains—Capt. Reaves, Lt. Cmdr. Everett P. Wuebbens Jr. and Lowell W. VanTassel—or by a guest speaker. Among this year's visitors were evangelist Billy Graham and Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor.

At the beginning of each semester, those who want to attend church in Annapolis enroll in one of the church parties. Each Sunday morning they muster at designated places and march to church in town.

They must be back at the academy for noon meal formation at 12:30 p.m., and this presents a problem to the churches.

CONSCIOUS

"We're always conscious of that deadline," says Dr. R. N. Dutton, pastor of College Avenue Baptist church. "We have to get them out by about noon if they are going to make it back in time."

The church party at College Avenue numbers 155 and makes up about a third of the average Sunday morning congregation.

"The midshipmen present quite a challenge to us," says Dr. Dutton, a former chaplain.

"They're going out from here to take up very responsible positions in the world. "We feel that if they can be good witnesses and set good examples wherever they go, that they will be doing a better job for their country."

About 15 midshpmen teach Sunday School classes, four or five sing in the choir and others serve as ushers. The church recreation room is open on Saturday and Sunday afternoons for those who want to bring their dates, do homework or play table tennis and shuffleboard.

A similar program is carried out at Calvary Methodist church which has 229 midshipmen in its church party, second in size only to the 231 who attend First Presbyterian church.

"We can't do anything beyond Saturday and Sunday because of time limitations," says the Rev. Charles I. Wallace, pastor of Calvary Methodist.

"We try to have a few parties on special holidays when the midshipmen are free. We have open house every Saturday afternoon with records, television, refreshments—and a few girls from the church to act as hostesses.

"My wife and I also have some of the church party in for Sunday dinner whenever we can. Usually we invite the plebes. They are the ones who need it most."

One of the midshipmen who attends St. Anne's Episcopal church, senior Gerald Davis Jr. of Morristown, N.J., recently was honored by the Annapolis Chamber of Commerce for his service to the community through his church work.

He is impressed with the efforts St. Anne's makes to serve its 194 midshipmen.

"The people here really make us feel a part of the church. I think we are even treated better than the other young people in the church."

Davis teaches Sunday School and is a licensed lay reader. He considers his church work an important part of his training for a naval career.

"Some day if I am out on a ship which doesn't have a chaplain, I'll be able to lead Protestant chapel services."

There frequently is no chaplain for ships or small units of men, and religious services must then be conducted by laymen.

LAY CLASSES

For this reason, the staff of chaplains conducts lay leader training classes each spring for midshipmen about to graduate who are interested in this work. These classes usually are attended by 75 to 100 persons.

There are numerous other religious activities directed by the chaplains. Mass is said each day at 6 a.m., and Protestant Holy Communion at 6 a.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

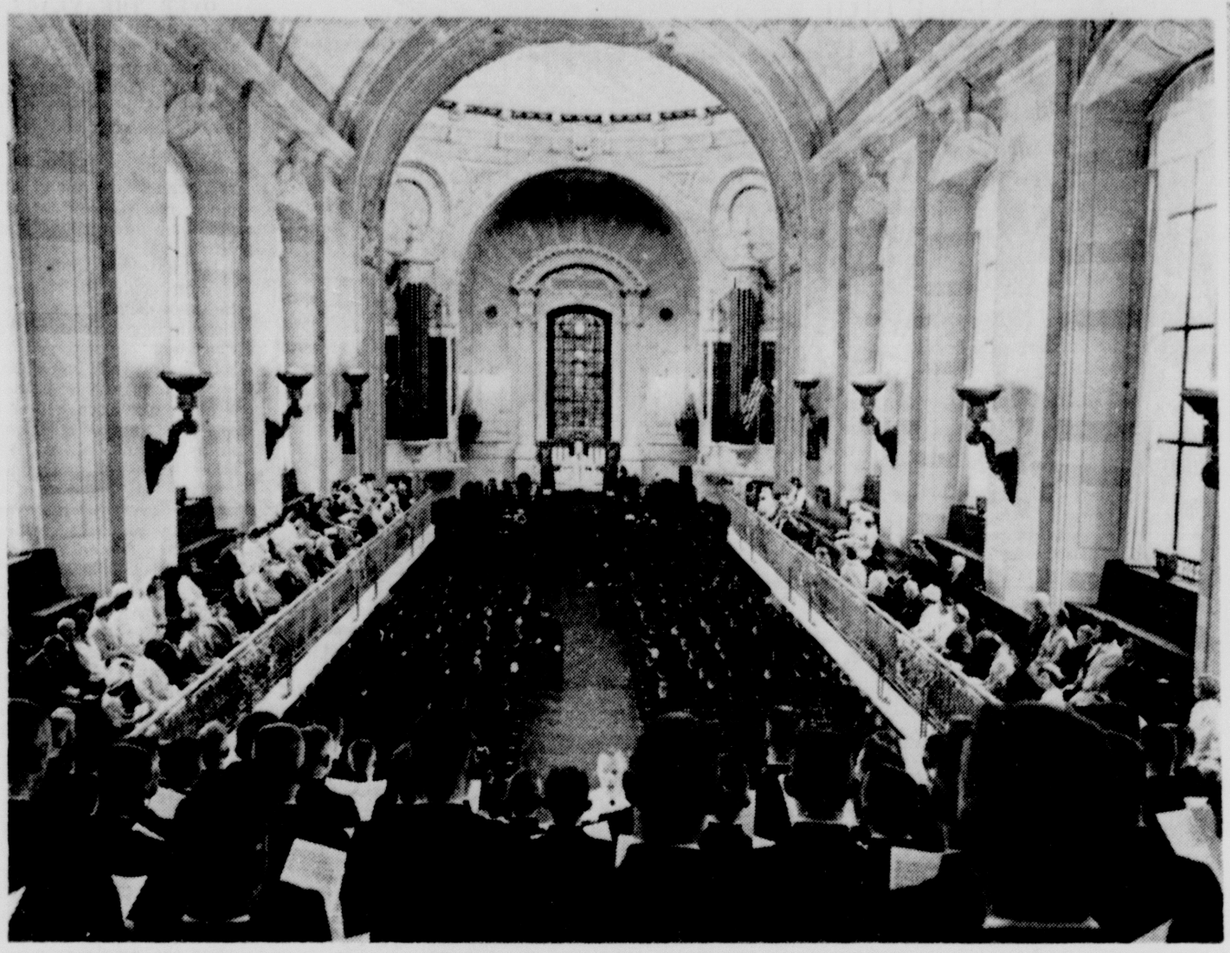

There are two Protestant choirs of nearly 300 midshipmen and a 135-voice Catholic choir, which sang hymns at the White House during the funeral of President John F. Kennedy.

The Catholic Newman Club and the Naval Academy Christian Association meet on alternate Sunday evenings, and the Officers' Christian Union, a Bible study group, attracts 50 to 100 midshipmen every Monday evening.

In addition to these formal activities, the chaplains try to establish as close a personal relationship as possible with the midshipmen.

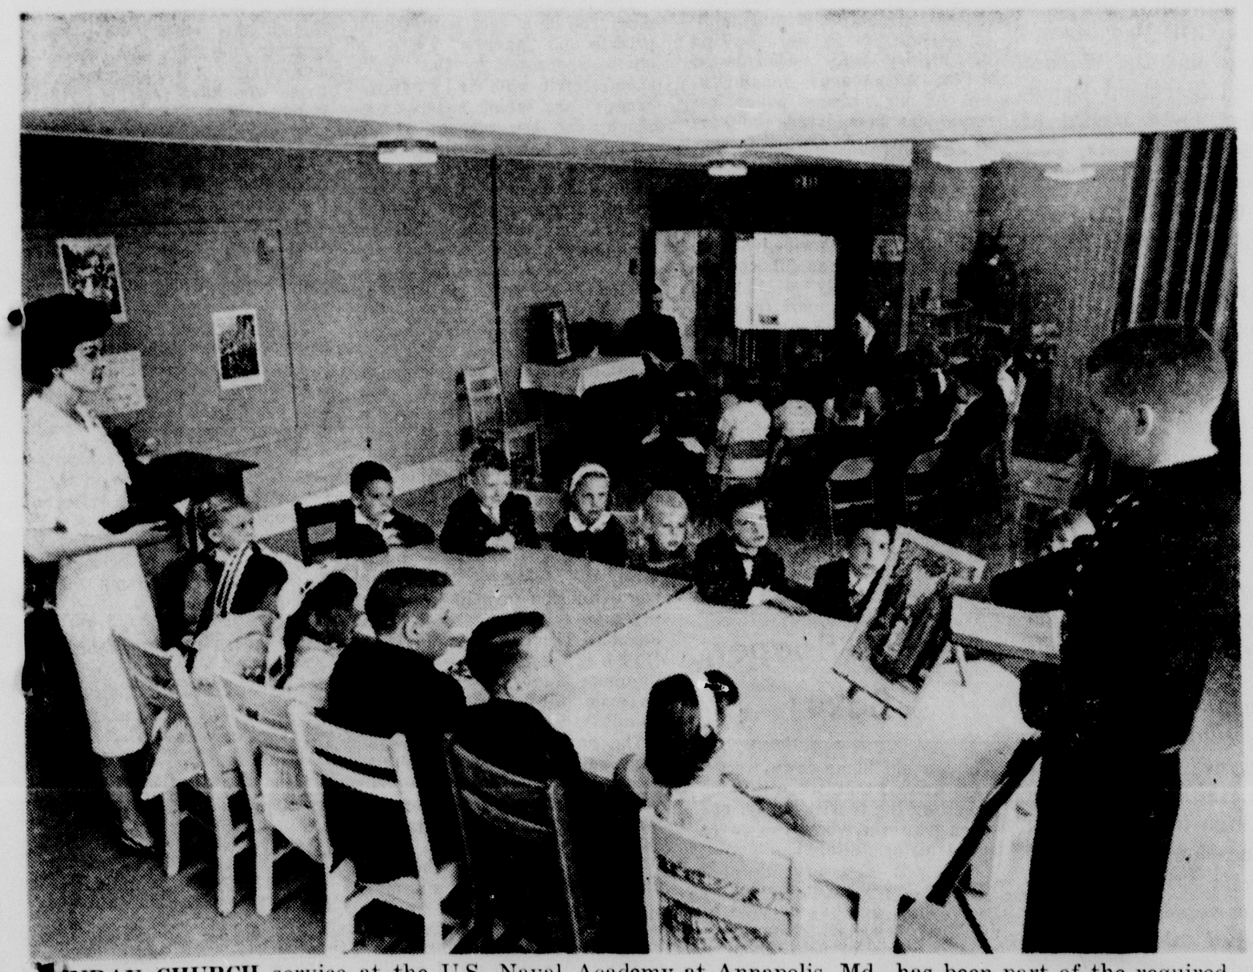

Each summer, all of the plebes are invited on Sunday afternoons in groups of about 250 to meet the chaplains.

"This is the first time in their stay at the academy that they do anything that isn't military from the word go," Capt. Reaves said.

Works For Dream

Unity Goal Of Cardinal

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Augustin Bea, the cardinal of the dream of Christian unity, is now in his 84th year but still works actively for a goal he believes is beyond his lifetime.

Head of the Vatican's Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity, the German cardinal has made such an impact on the ecumenical or unity movement that many regard him as Roman Catholicism's leading personality next to the Pope.

His personal outlook explains much about his influence in that field.

"I'm neither an optimist nor a pessimist," he has said many times. "Rather I am a realist, and I trust in God. Everybody who knows the situation realizes that the difficulties are tremendous.

"On the way to union mountains of obstacles still arise. We need a faith that can move mountains, and a charity to match that faith."

Pope John XXIII created the unity secretariat in 1960 and asked Cardinal Bea to direct it. Even before then the cardinal had won distinction in a church career touching on many intellectual areas.

BUILT PARISHES

As a young Jesuit provincial in southern Germany he built thriving parishes, schools and colleges in the region from which Martin Luther and the Protestant Reformation sprang.

As the leading biblical scholar of his church he generated revolutionary new impulse into Cathment and scriptural interpretaolic research on the old Testation.

He was private confessor to Pope Pius XII at the end of World War II.

The youth was stricken with a lung disease at the age of 11. Doctors gave him only three months to live. A decade later he got further medical advice that study in Rome would kill him because he would be unable to stand the climate of the Italian capital.

Cardinal Bea has been in Rome now for 40 years. Time has hunched his shoulders and bowed his neck, but he plunges into his work with a zest that wearies the younger priests on his staff. Cardinal Bea arises usually between 5 and 5:30 a.m. He works late into the night.

He writes about 2,200 letters a year, receives almost 500 visitors, attends 100 receptions, takes part in 100 meetings and conferences, delivers almost a score of lectures, travels thousands of miles.

When the second session of the Vatican Ecumenical Council ended last December, his weary staff of six priests was discussing vacation sites where they wanted to rest. One of them asked the cardinal where he planned to go.

Cardinal Bea smiled and said he would be staying on the job, adding: "I'm too busy to get tired."

He does as much work at his residence in the Brazilian College as he does in the secretariat's office on the Via Dei Corridori—the Street of the Runners—which leads straight into St. Peter's Square.

A huge portrait dominates his study at the Brazilian College, an inscribed picture of Patriarch Athenagoras, spiritual leader of the world's 190 million Orthodox.

The cardinal has met, and arranged for the Pope to meet, virtually every major leader of a Christian church — starting with the historic 1960 visit of Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Anglican archbishop of Canterbury, and including Patriarch Athenagoras and leaders of the Episcopalian, Baptist and Presbyterian churches.

NONE BEFORE

Some of his trips have brought him to places where no cardinal has set foot since the 16th-century Reformation — Heidelberg, Tubinge, Zurich.

"Let us leave the judgment of the past to the historians," he says in such places to largely non-Catholic audiences.

"Let us leave it even more to the judgment of God, and let us try to regain today what was lost centuries ago—the unity of all baptized in Christ."

He first studied theology at the University of Freiburg. His father was unhappy upon learning that the boy wanted to become a priest. He had hoped his son would carry on the Bea confarm.

Bismarck had banned the Jesuits from Germany so Bea entered a seminary in Holland. He studied at the Universities of Innsbruck, Valkenburg and Berlin.

Fiscal Irresponsibility

A legislative lobby of the Louisiana Teachers Association (LTA), prodded by scattered groups of school people in South Louisiana, is determined to force through the Legislature a bill to establish a $48 million to $52 million salary increase for teachers and other public school employes despite the fact that there is no money available now to pay for an increase of any size.

Such a course is both fiscal recklessness and encouragement for precisely the kind of instability in state government which has been so destructive to Louisiana in the past and which Governor McKeithen is trying so hard to eliminate.

This South Louisiana education group, with considerable backing among North Louisiana Legislators but not from North Louisiana teachers, is taking this step despite the fact that Governor McKeithen virtually has begged them to defer action and has declared himself as "dedicated" to getting an increase of school salary scale if the LTA will just give him six months to find the money.

The Governor has warned that passage of millions of dollars of spending without money to pay for it could destroy his determined effort to create a new image of government in Louisiana as a means of bringing new industry into this state and thus reviving and improving our whole economy — including that of teachers.

In South Louisiana the Jefferson Parish branch of the LTA already has passed a resolution that, in effect, calls on teachers to strike when school opens next September if the pay hike bill is not passed—and the scale paid. Some other Louisiana school leaders have taken the same position behind the scenes without speaking out publicly. So far as we know, no teacher or LTA branch in North Louisiana has proposed any such move.

No issue has been raised as to whether teacher pay should be increased.

The issue is simply whether to follow a fiscally reckless and unstable course of voting to spend somewhere around $50 million when there is not even $5 million available, or whether to give Governor McKeithen six months to find a solution to the problem that will fit into the excellent efforts he and the Legislature have been making to put Louisiana on its feet economically.

Instead of helping the Governor —and the state—the LTA Legislative lobby thus is pointing a gun—a threat of strikes and closing the schools in September—at the Governor, at the Legislature, at the children of Louisiana and at the state's taxpayers.

This gun is pointed even at thousands of individual teachers, for it is impossible to believe that teachers generally would want needlessly to explode a bomb within the state's welfare by refusing the Governor the six months he requests.

Certainly North Louisiana Legislators who, perhaps thoughtlessly, attached their names to this bill must realize that any vote for this bill now —with no money to pay the scale and with the Governor asking only six months leeway—would be a vote for fiscal irresponsibility.

Some of the Legislators now supporting this step of fiscal instability were among the Legislators who so gallantly and successfully fought against comparable types of governmental irresponsibility in the preceding administration; particularly in defeating the "phoney" plan to add up to $48 million a year to the sales tax in the name of segregation when such a sum was in no way needed for the segregation cause. That proposal at least was fiscally sound because it did provide revenue for planned spending.

The whole Louisiana public education system—university, college, high school and elementary — is badly in need of money. Dr. William D. Ross, Dean of the L.S.U. College of Business Administration, said Thursday that improvement of the quality of higher education is "the number one priority in Louisiana state government in the immediate future." Actually improvement of all public education is among the first needs.

In our own North Louisiana, Northeast, Tech and Northwestern all are suffering from lack of funds. In the face of this, the House Education Committee has voted to reinstate the system whereby Legislators can gain exemption from college fees for favored students. At the Governor's request this system was wiped out in proposed legislation. The Committee's course should be reversed and the Governor supported, just as he should be supported in the teacher pay issue. Under this system 14,170 fee exemptions last year were granted students in what amounted to purely political gravy dished out by Legislators. The cost to the fiscally suffering higher education schools was $500,000.

GOP And Goldwater

Richard Nixon said Friday that any move now to "stop Goldwater" would wreck the Republican Party and that GOP liberals and leftists should quit fighting him and concentrate on licking Lyndon B. Johnson next November. He said Senator Goldwater obviously would be the GOP nominee.

Governor William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania took somewhat the same line, adding that he is willing to be the running mate with Senator Goldwater, but that he would not seek the vice presidential nomination.

These are common sense things that Senator Goldwater has been saying right along and that other Republican Party leaders should have been saying. It is especially well for Mr. Nixon to pick up the Goldwater ball. He is the titular head of the Party, makes frequent public appearances, and his utterances thus acquire much newspaper and television exposure. Further, he has no candidate axe to grind.

Still further, Mr. Nixon is in a position to point out, without immodesty, that the man who beat him—President Kennedy — was a minority victor in the popular vote and led Mr. Nixon only by approximately 16/100ths of one per cent; and that the Democratic Party has not gained the majority of the popular presidential vote in any election since Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944.

Despite these things and the stunning Goldwater upset in California, such Republicans as Governor Rockefeller personally, Senators Kuchel of California and Javits of New York, and various liberal television commentators as well as some liberal newspaper columnists, are contending either that: (1) the Republican Party is dead, or (2) if it's alive, Senator Goldwater will kill it and, in some cases, (3) perhaps it is good leftist strategy to let Goldwater have the nomination, give him no campaign support, and thus assure a Johnson victory and open the way for leftists to take over the GOP.

All of these three contentions are sure steps toward killing the Party or forcing it into suicide. The real trouble with the Republican Party today is the Republican leftists who would rather kill it than let a Conservative win anything. If the GOP liberals will check they will find that Goldwater polled more votes in the GOP primaries as a whole than all of his liberal opponents together.

The GOP is being revived, not wrecked by the infusions of conservative blood it is getting. But if the liberals and leftists get control of it through denying Senator Goldwater the nomination, or by aiding in a Johnson victory by not backing him as a candidate in November, the Party certainly will be impotent in 1968—a political paper tiger with no basic issues to make against the Democratic Party at that time. Governor Rockefeller stated publicly just before the assassination of President Kennedy that the chief difference between him and the late President was that they sought the same objectives (many of which are socialistic) but wanted to use different methods. In other words, "we both want to sail the boat but I've got to be captain."

As for the polls indicating that President Johnson is unbeatable, one need only look at the GOP New Hampshire, Oregon and California primaries and the Wallace results in the Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland Democratic primaries. The pollsters rolled up a record of 100 per cent wrong in each of these six contests. Few would question that President Johnson is popular now, but many might point out that this popularity has come considerably through circus type of press agentry, which rarely lasts.

The contention that Senator Goldwater lacks "mainstream" support is well knocked down in a Wall Street Journal editorial on the California primary, replying to those who call Goldwater supporters "ring wing extremists." It said:

> "By and large it is the friends of liberty, not the champions of authority, that have won (in California) and deserve the thanks of peoples everywhere."

It further says, "Those in either party who persist in pretending that conservative strength is a hallucination will be repudiating a whole lot of very-much-alive voters."

A national network news commentator who rarely gives the Arizona Senator a break, said—in analyzing the California returns—that the Negroes voted 100 per cent for Rockefeller; that the Jews, the Mexicans, the Spanish, the low-income groups, the high income groups, labor, and those in high levels of education all voted for Governor Rockefeller. Asking himself: "then who did vote for Senator Goldwater?" he answered himself by saying: "The everyday average type of middle bracket white person—by the tens of thousands."

That middle bracket, "the mainstream," is the group that built the nation and that can always control any election—local, state or federal—whenever it puts its mind to the job.

Now A P.S. To His Earlier Commandment

HENRY J. TAYLOR

President Johnson Must Change Into A Statesman

PRESIDENT Johnson must turn into a statesman for the security of our nation. The foreign policy tread we're riding on is not good enough and now is a golden moment for Mr. Johnson to break with the past.

The serious and growing Red China — U.S.S.R. split is a solid three years old. It should always have been for us as full as plums as a fruit cake. Yet American foreign policy seems utterly unable to cash in on the opportunities. The best the Johnson Administration has provided (which may well cause our own hara-kiri) is a be-soft-with-Khrushchev counter-response.

Instead, President Johnson should break with the Kennedy policy. Whatever other successful policies the late President may have had, foreign policy — on the record — was not one of them. Foreign policy was not his forte. We should never make concessions to the Kremlin without concessions in return. The Kremlin, obtaining generous compromises, brings the reconciliation to nothing (and worse) by treating as a sign of weakness what has been inspired by wistfulness and wrong judgment.

MR. JOHNSON has made a few changes, notably the elevation of Assistant Secretary of State for Latin America Thomas Mann, but for the most part the same mistaken thinkers responsible for the Bay of Pigs, for giving the Reds their sanctuary in Laos, the appeasers Khrushchev surprised by his Berlin wall, the supporters of the change in the South Viet Nam regime that tossed us out of the frying pan into the fire, etc., remain: Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Under Secretary Averell Harriman, the brothers McGeorge and William Bundy, Walt W. Rostow, African overlord G. Mennen ("Soapy") Williams and the rest. Courtesy no longer requires Mr. Johnson to keep them, and if he is keeping them because he wants them he should look at the record.

MOREOVER, the whole crew still on board has a vested interest in their failures of the past. This shows up in a well-planned press campaign, devised and carried out to achieve the self-serving claim that there's a successful foreign policy after all in the face of obvious debacles and retreats and endless humiliations.

As one result, President Johnson — caught in this — spends his entire day asking, "What are we in danger of losing?" not "What are we gaining?"

At a recent Richmond, Va., gathering this writer heard a penetrating review by former Under Secretary of State Robert Murphy, affectionately known as "Mr. State Department" on his retirement (1959) after a lifetime in worldwide diplomacy.

It was a polite but all-out attack on the be-soft-with-Khrushchev response to the China split or any other rationalization.

Mr. Murphy urged our country to be realistic and exploit by demands for concessions the Soviet preoccupation with internal troubles and with China rather than offer softness (convenient to Khrushchev) with the mistaken idea that a temporary resort to "peaceful coexistence" really means a basic change in long-range Soviet intentions and aggressions. We are drawn off on a dozen false trails, like a bewildered dog behind a fox.

HE ASKED WHAT comfort we should derive from an internal struggle for power inside the Sino-Soviet block unless the struggle destroys the system. Certainly there is no evidence of that, nor was this even claimed in the Kennedy policy.

He pointed out that the Red system is inherently implacable in its hostility to ours, citing its history and performance with monotonous regularity. Yet in our present policy we remain as bewildered and surprised—surprise, surprise, surprise—as the farm-boy sucker at the carnival shell game. We never seem able to locate the pea.

Mr. Murphy described Soviet advocacy of "peaceful coexistence" as merely a tactical maneuver "to support the position in which the Kremlin leadership finds itself at the moment, embroiled as it is with Peking and internal troubles." ("Peaceful coexistence" is a slogan coined by Lenin for the stated purpose of deceiving the capitalistic world in the implacable design to destroy it.) Statesman Murphy asked his listeners not to believe him, but to believe Lenin. President Johnson should believe them both.

Senator Soaper Says

In the old home town we always figured that, when it came to getting the tourist dollar, one speed trap was worth two caves and a historic site.

The fellow who quit smoking two months ago has decided he might as well start again, since nobody wants to hear about it any longer.

"Outdoor cooking has come of age," a headline informs us. Well, at least it has outgrown embroidered wisecracks on the barbecue apron.

Equality In Pay For Women Near

OVER THE YEARS American women have won the right to vote, smoke in public, serve in the armed forces and they have achieved positions of great prominence in government, industry and the professions.

On June 11 another wall of resistence comes tumbling down when the Federal equal-pay-for-women law goes into effect.

Ultimately, some 10,000,000 women could be affected by the new legislation which was signed into law last June by President Kennedy.

It is for the American working woman the culmination of a campaign launched a decade ago in Congress but pushed for many, many more years at other levels of government.

What this means, of course, is that certain employers will have to pay the same wage rates to women doing equal work on jobs requiring equal skill, effort and responsibility which are performed under similar working conditions.

THE NEW LAW will be in force in every establishment where employees are subject to a minimum wage under the Fair Labor Standards Act. By and large, the full thrust of the equal-pay law will focus on industrial installations.

Left uncovered by the legislation are many millions of other women who work in retail and service establishments such as hotels, restaurants, hospital, theaters and the like.

For the employer who chooses to ignore the law the penalties can be severe. On an initial violation he could be prosecuted criminally and fined up to $10,000. A second violation could result in imprisonment.

While the concept of eliminating discrimination in women's pay is commendable in most persons' view, the mere stroke of a Presidential pen cannot be expected to make women completely equal to men on the job.

Many state laws now on the books will see to that.

FOR EXAMPLE, 44 States restrict the hours which women may work, six restrict night work for women, six limit the weight which women may lift, and 16 require rest periods for women.

This was brought out during Congressional hearings by employers who wanted to emphasize that the flexibility sometimes required is not always available on the part of women.

At the State level, equal-pay laws for women are not anything new. Michigan and Montana have had them since 1919. Following World War II, 20 more States passed such laws. These include Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Hawaii, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

All the State laws apply to manufacturing which is the principal industry covered by the new Federal statute. Except for Illinois, in which coverage is limited to manufacturing only, most State laws apply to all types of private employment except domestic service, agriculture and employment by charitable or educational organizations.

ACTUALLY, equal - pay is not really new as far as the Federal government is concerned.

During World War I the War Labor Board applied the principle for workers in private industry. The War Labor Board of World War II required equal pay for women performing comparable quantity and quality of work with men. And in the Korean War the same policies were carried out.

As far as Federal employees are concerned equal pay has been in effect since 1923. In that year Congress established a uniform salary for each specified grade and class of work in the Federal civil service.

All of the ramifications of this new legislation will not be known for some time to come but it is apparent there are some problems to be encountered and resolved.

Higher pay could induce more women to seek employment in industry at a time when automation is squeezing men out of jobs.

The Federal government is already involved in trying to eliminate discrimination in the hiring of Negroes. Now it must combat discrimination of another kind.

While it is coincidential the fact must not be ignored that the new equal pay law goes into effect at a time when the cause of womanhood has never before been more vigorously championed than it is now at the White House.

Summer Camping Showing Dropoff

WHILE INDUSTRIES and services across the country are in record booms, one enormous business which has slid into a long leveling — off phase and which is now starting to fight as never before to hold its own is summer camping.

A couple of weeks from now, when the first mobs of youngsters start to jam railroad stations and bus depots the nation over, you well may conclude that the summer camp migration is more gigantic than ever. But it won't be so.

The number scheduled to go to summer camps this year is 5 million, the same total as in 1959, when I last reported this story. The total of camps in the U.S. today is 12,500 unchanged since 1959, despite the huge growth in our population since. The summer camp business is estimated at $500 million, also the same.

The leveling-off is unmistakable. The blunt fact is that both private and "agency" camps (those sponsored by the "Ys", scouts, civic and religious groups) are facing a severe pinch, and the reasons are:

The war babies — there were 18 million born between 1946 and 1950 — are now passing the camping age, moving into the college, job, marrying and settling-down age.

THE UNPRECEDENTED wave of war babies has been cutting a chronological swath through the U.S. economy, has been creating progressive booms in the baby food business, children's clothes, bicycles, soda pop, summer camps, etc., etc. But the babies are into their older teens, and their tastes, habits, activities are violently changing.

It could be that the summer camp business will be in a lull until the mid-'70s, when the war babies in turn have camping age children. When this happens, though, says Marjorie Hicks, managing editor of Camping Magazine, "there'll be an even bigger boom for camps."

The camps are into increasingly rough competition with summer schools and are up against a growing trend toward family vacations and stay-at-home activities.

They're also feeling the impact of the upsurge in summer travel abroad and the rising popularity of overseas summer camps — many of which specialize in languages and music, offer children opportunities to learn important skills while vacationing.

BECAUSE CAMPING is so highly seasonal and the costs of establishing and maintaining a summer camp are climbing steadily, the pinch is real and the industry is developing significant new twists to ease it.

As one illustration, more and more camps are extending their summer sessions and many — particularly YMCA camps — are becoming year-round operations.

Some camps are scheduling two five-week sessions instead of one eight-week session thereby doubling the number of youngsters they can accomodate. Others are setting up off-season camping weeks and weekends staying open for skiing in winter. Miss Hicks reports that "Many Scout troops, church groups, 'Y' groups and similar organizations are going to camp in the dead of winter. With the right equipment and skills, they are comfortable and have a marvelous time." Although this may involve winterizing buildings and off-season staffs, the judgment of those who have tried it is that it pays off.

AS ANOTHER illustration, more and more camps are offering their facilities as low-cost convention and meeting sites. Their major appeals are to fraternal organizations and church groups who may rent a camp for a weekend or a week.

Finally, more and more camps are opening their facilities to individual families on cross-country outings, are setting aside part of the camp for transient paying guests.

This summer will dramatize the transition going on in U.S. camping. It also will indicate the sort of ingenuity other businesses will have to summon as the massive tide of teenagers moves into its collective adulthood.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

The Week In Focus

by Jack Gaies

The Good And The Bad

There still wasn't much to cheer about from the bloody battlefields of Southeast Asia the past week as the U.S. continued to take it on the chin in that vital area of the world.

In Washington, President Johnson vaguely continued to say that the future of Southeast Asia as a whole is at stake in Laos and South Viet Nam, adding that the U.S. "cannot fail to do its full share to meet the challenge."

JOHNSON

He announced no new American Moves and denied that the U.S. has prepared plans for carrying the Vietnamese guerrilla war into the northern part of that country.

The President also declined to discuss probable results of the past week's Honolulu meeting to review the ominous trend of events in Southeast Asia except to say it should help "improve our effectiveness and our efficiency.

At the meeting, attended by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, some officials were reported to feel the deterioration in South Viet Nam had stopped. However, it was understood this feeling was not wholly shared by others in the group of senior civilian authorities and military leaders. The group broke camp Tuesday without a formal announcement.

LODGE

There were reports, unofficial, that Johnson has approved plans to intensify and streamline the military effort in that area, but it has not been announced what these plans are.

In the past, U.S. military officials have strongly resisted any plans for sending troops into action on the mainland unless they had advanced authorization to use atomic weapons, if that became necessary.

RUSK

The late President John F. Kennedy turned thumbs down on this condition when intervention in Laos was being considered in 1961, and there is no indication that Johnson would be willing to give the Pentagon such authorization.

Meanwhile at Saigon, Maj. Gen. Joseph Moore, commander of the 2nd Air Division, says new Skyraider fighter-bombers are being brought into South Viet Nam to step up the war against the Viet Cong and not because the planes they replace are obsolete or unsafe. The new planes, he said, are heavier, faster and bigger than the planes now in use and carry a wider variety of ordinance. Moore denied reports the T28 and B26 planes which were being used in South Viet Nam were obsolete.

Airmen had earlier written letters home saying the planes were obsolete and outdated and coming apart in flight.

In the actual fighting, there was very little change. In one instance, the Communist force wiped out a key defense post with the aid of two south Viet Nam traitors. In fact, in just about all engagements, South Viet Nam forces were pushed back.

The situation remained the same in Laos where the Communist continue to gain ground despite veiled threats by the U.S.

Late in the week, the Security Council of the U.N. voted to send three of its members to the Cambodia-South Viet Nam border area to study how to end border violations that Cambodia called aggression. Agreement came after nearly two weeks of fiery debate.

Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko, the Soviet delegate, critized the resolution prepared by Morocco and the Ivory Coast on the grounds that "its delicate language did not name the U.S. outright as an aggressor, but he claimed the debate in the council clearly established that fact.

Cambodia brought its complaint to the Security Council alleging that South Vietnamese had attacked towns in that nation.

The California Election

The California elections the past week again proved that polls and political experts can be and are often wrong.

Most had predicted that Senator Barry Goldwater could not defeat Governor Nelson Rockefeller in the crucial test for California's important 86 votes at the GOP convention in San Francisco this summer. But when all the votes were in, the Arizona senator had won despite the fact that numerous key Republican leaders in that state had backed Rockefeller.

GOLDWATER

The victory gave Goldwater at least 436 pledged votes at the convention and surveys indicated that by the time of the convention he would have at least 619 delegates, only 36 short of the victory number.

Although overjoyed by the win, Goldwater was nevertheless cautious, saying it was still a long road to the nomination. He called on the GOP to unite, an apparent effort to head off a stop Goldwater campaign which presumably has been launched by some and particularly Rockefeller.

Meanwhile in New York, Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said he would take no part in any such coalition if one were set up. He said a combination of Goldwater and Pennsylvania Gov. William S. Scranton "would perhaps be the strongest team" if Goldwater is nominated for president. But Scranton said he would turn down any GOP presidential candidate who asked him to accept the vice presidential nomination unless it was accompanied by a genuine draft of convention delegates.

In other results in California, Pierre Salinger, the chubby, quip-loving former White House press secretary, banked on his close connection with the late President Kennedy and won the Democratic senatorial nomination. His Republican opponent will be onetime dancer and film actor, George Murphy.

Meanwhile, concern on Capitol Hill is on the rise about carpetbaggers in the Senate. Salinger's California campaign and the political soundings in New York by Attorney General Robert Kennedy—although he has denied it—have caused the fears.

SALINGER

Until this year, the idea that a candidate had to call home the state from which he launched his candidacy had rarely been challenged. But the California Supreme Court ruled in the Salinger case that the only residence requirement imposed by the U.S. Constitution is that the candidate be a resident at the time he is elected. Salinger lists Virginia as where he lived. As a result of this ruling, some political observers fear that with burgeoning Federal grants making past handouts seem insignificant in comparison, entire states are becoming "clients" of Washington administrations which can maneuver acceptance of such candidacies in a gigantic logrolling operation. And they warn that if the practice continues to grow, it could profoundly alter the character of the Senate as traditionally representative of the country's regionalisms and other diversities.

Streets Of New York

The streets of New York apparently have become just about as dangerous as fighting Communist in the jungles of Asia.

In an effort to halt violence, New York's emergency crime-stopping plan went into effect the past week with 700 extra police assigned to work overtime.

It was hoped that this extra show of force, ordered by Mayor Robert F. Wagner, would act as a deterrent to gangs of youths who participated in recent wave of murders, rapes, muggings, robberies and other terror tactics on the city's streets and transit system.

The growing violence, some apparently if not all, racially motivated, hit its peak last weekend when young Negroes terrorized passengers on subways and a ferry boat in five separate incidents. In addition two women were raped and one was slain in the troubled Crown Heights section of Brooklyn.

In one incident, 20 or more Negroes, many of them reeking of Alcohol, rioted on a subway train, smashing windows and light bulbs and mercilessly beating and robbing white passengers.

Other Domestic Issues

GENERAL CURTIS E. LeMay told graduates at the Air Force Academy in Colorado the past week that modern weapons make it clear that the penalties for lapses of vigilance and misuse of power that have marred history are not prohibitive. He said this means that civilization, in order to survive, must do better than it has in the past . . .

AT NEW LONDON, Conn., President Johnson told the Coast Guard graduating class that the U.S. is stronger militarily today "than any adversary or combination of adversaries." But he said the staggering strength is not to destroy but to save, not to put an end to civilization but to put an end to conflict . . .

SOME FEELING is reported to exist amony members of the Warren Commission that no final conclusion should be reached at this time that Lee Oswald acted alone in the assassination of President Kennedy. Sources say it thought premature to reach such a conclusion until the investigation ordered by President Johnson is completed . . .

IN WASHINGTON, a showdown is due next Tuesday on the Civil Rights bill. That is the day Republican and Democratic leaders will try to invoke cloture and limit in one hour the total time each senator may speak on all amendments and the bill itself. There is still some question of whether the bill's supporters can muster the two-thirds majority — 67 if all sentors vote — to shut off debate, now 80 days long. There have been some indication that Senator Barry Goldwater's victory in California could be a boost to Southern hopes that the bill can be defeated . . .

Overseas

BIGGEST NEWS from overseas seemed to be the idea that the Soviet Union is on the brink of formally severing ties between the Communist Parties of the Soviet Union and China. The Russian newspaper Pravda said "the threat of a split is a reality which the world Communist movement must reckon with. Marxist-Leninists do not want a split, but unity cannot be attained through concessions on matters of principles," the newspaper added. It was one of the strongest statements yet on the Moscow-Peking fued. However, Western diplomats do not believe a break in relations between the two would be between the two governments . . .

IN SOUTH KOREA, President Chung Hee Park's regime was in trouble as thousands of students continued demonstrations in eight major cities demanding that he resign. In Seoul, Park imposed martial law, but despite this, some students continued to demonstrate. Two front line army divisions were ordered into the city. Park has attempted to reason with the students, apparently mindful of the fact that just such student demonstrations brought down President Syngham Rhee's government in 1960. . .

PARK

ON THE CUBAN FRONT, newly-arrived Cuban refugees to Miami claim that a 250-man milita unit revolted in Pinar del Rio last April and joined rebel forces operating in that area, which they called the "focus of anti-Castro rebellion." And at the same time, a Miami-based ship transport company confirmed reports that one of its vessels were "buzzed" by Cuban air force MIG last week. The Cuban Red Cross has admitted that anti-Castro forces have been attacking Cuban coastal cities, causing great damage and loss of life. At Nassau, Bahamas, Manuel Ray, the anti-Castro leader who had promised to be inside Cuba by May 20 or die trying, was sneaked into a magistrate's court Thursday and fined $14 on a minor charge. He was arrested by the British on Monday 30 miles north of the Cuban coast. Ray's right - hand man in Miami, Rogelio Cisneros, said that Ray had not got inside Cuba because "it was impossible due to the extraordinary vigllance of the Castro authorities." . . .

State And Local Issues

In the Louisiana legislature, the biggest fight of the session apparently will be over the Teachers Pay Raise proposal. Overall the plan would cost an addition $30 to $50 million a year. While the proposed bill calls for a raise it does not provide the funds to carry it out. Rep. Lawrence Gibbs of Ouachita Parish, who is pushing the measure, has said he did not have any plans for raising the money, adding "the governor wants a special session to raise the money and I'll wait and see what he has to offer." Governor John J. McKeithen has said he will veto the proposed pay increase unless funds are provided to carry it out. There are indications the proposal will be passed in the House, but possibly will be killed in the Senate.

Meanwhile, the governor has been in bed the past week, ill with the mumps.

On Thursday, his proposed student loan program was riddled in the House education committee with an amendment to save the college fee exemptions handed out by lawmakers. An amendment by Rep. Lawrence Sheridan of Washington Parish to knock out of the bill a clause repealing the fee exemption program was approved. Carlos Spaht, the governor's legal counsel said "this destroys the bill." Lawmakers get 50 fee exemptions for college students worth $10 at state schools except LSU where they are valued at $25 each. They are passed out at the discretion of the solons.

Little Known Facts

INTERESTING NOTE — Wall Street Democrats, hit for campaign contributions, have been told whom they likely will see as the vice president nominee on the Democrat ticket with Johnson. He's Senator Hubert Humphrey . .

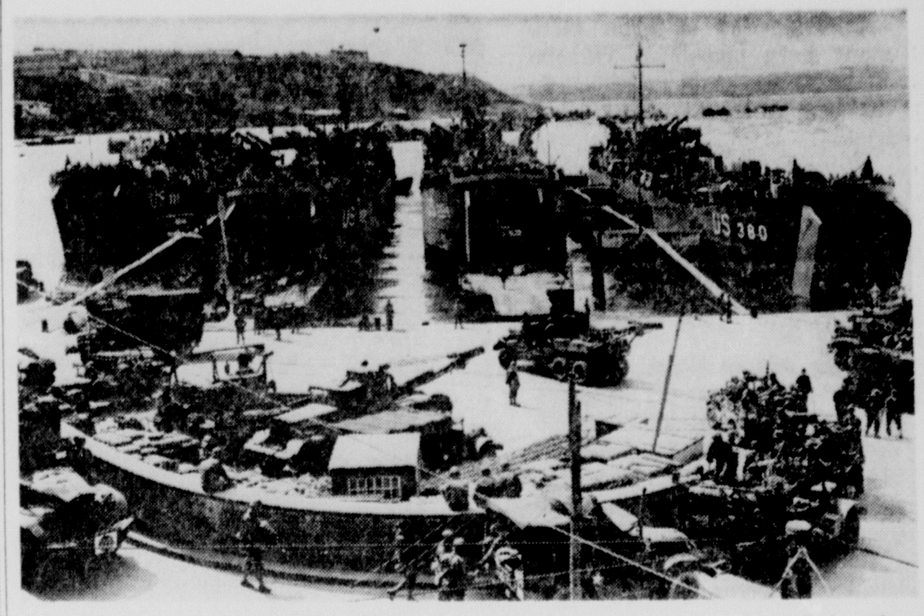

PRESIDENT Johnson, who is a master politician and make no mistake about it, has let it be known that he rates Gov. William Scranton as the Republican who can make the best race against him. This could be a trick to throw the GOP and to aid in a stop Goldwater drive. . .

MEANWHILE if President Johnson's "War on Poverty," a program considered by those in the know as nothing but a political trick, is not victorious — and the betting in Washington is that it won't be — Johnson is ready to consider FDR-type public works. This would spell the end of most of the Administration's economy-in-government talk.

D-Day Plus 20 Years

Decision In The Dark

TWENTY years after D - Day, General Dwight D. Eisenhower returned to the scene of the events that radically altered the course of World War II to record his reminiscences. In this exclusive conversation with Walter Cronkite, General Eisenhower recounted the historic moments of the Normandy invasion. This is the first of a series of sixteen installments of the entire conversation, prepared by the New York Herald Tribune. Here the former President is back in the war room of his old Portsmouth, England, command post, answering Mr. Cronkite's question's as to what happened on June 5th — the day before D - Day — 20 years ago.

20 HOURS FROM NORMANDY — Scene near American embarkation port in Plymouth, England, as landing barges were being loaded for the trip across the English Channel to France.

MR. CRONKITE: It all sounds so easy twenty years later, General Eisenhower, but that dark morning of June 5th, with a storm raging outside, you had to make the decision. You were sitting in this very room.

GEN. EISENHOWER: I was sitting on a little couch, not very comfortable. We were listening to the weather report.

First of all, there was my Chief of Staff, General (Walter Bedell) Smith, an American. Then my Deputy, Air Chief Marshal (Sir Arthur W.) Tedder, of the Royal Air Force. We had the naval commander, Admiral (Sir Bertam) Ramsay, a man with a wonderful reputation. We had Air Chief Marshal (Sir Trafford) Leigh-Mallory, a man who had done a great deal of the fighting in the Battle of Britain. Then we had General (Sir Bernard L.) Montgomery and General (Omar N.) Bradley. Montgomery headed the British ground forces, Bradley ours. Because these two ground forces were going in on the beaches without a commander directly over them, Montgomery had the duty of co-ordinating the work between them. After we broke out of the beachhead, Bradley would become an army group commander, equal in status with Montgomery, and their forces would be separate under the command of my headquarters.

Listening

All those people were here that morning. There wasn't too much talk. We listened.

All of us had heard these weather briefings time and again. We had made practice runs. We had had Group Captain Stagg (the Royal Air Force officer who was Chief Allied Meteorologist) and his weather forecasters before me twice a day for some days just to see how this would work out. We always had proof, you see, of what they said the weather would be.

I think that I possibly sat silently just reviewing all sorts of things, maybe, oh, I'd say 35 or 45 seconds.

Now, it has been reported by some of the people present, for example, my own Chief of Staff, that I waited five minutes. Well, I am sure that it wasn't five minutes. Five minutes under such conditions would seem like a year.

Actually, I think after 30, 45 seconds, something like that, I just got up and said, "Okay, we'll go." And this room was empty in two seconds.

MR. CRONKITE: What were you thinking of during those 45 seconds?

Hoping

GEN. EISENHOWER: I was reviewing briefly all the possibilities we had for success and what the penalties would be for the whole venture of making the wrong decision — being too rash. On the other hand, there were the penalties of not making any decision and saying "we'll wait some more."

Don't forget, some hundreds of thousands of men were down here around Portsmouth, and many of them had already been loaded for some time, particularly those who were going in. They were crowded up, and everybody was unhappy.

We were so hopeful of reasonable weather that some of the people way up in the north of England were already sailing toward their invasion beaches. Postponement meant that a number of ships would have to go back to England and refuel. Then we probably couldn't have gone before the 8th of June, and the 8th was the last day acceptable from the standpoint of tide, moon and weather.

The earlier postponement of 24 hours the day before was serious. But it would have been a bad situation if we had to postpone beyond the 6th because of refueling and all that kind of thing.

So I just reviewed the situation in my mind and said I thought the best opportunity had come now. We had received a God-given opportunity in this little space of good weather — about which the Germans knew nothing, it turned out later— and I said yes.

MR. CRONKITE: Did any of the commanders in the room dissent?

GEN. EISENHOWER: No, not on that day. There was a difference of opinion the prior morning, but it wasn't serious, and I just said we'd postpone then, and we did.

MR. CRONKITE: This was approximately four - fifteen on the morning of June 5th. You had about 20 hours to wait before the first airborne troops went in and 26 hours before the ground forces hit the beaches. What did you do during all those hours of waiting?

Inspecting

GEN. EISENHOWER: Well, of course, Walter, that's the most terrible time for a senior commander. He has done all that he can do, all the planning, and so on. As a matter of fact, there's very little more that any commander above division can do after you get started on an amphibious operation.

So, the first thing I did, I went over and fortified myself with a lot of coffee and had breakfast. Then I began to go up and down these beaches to see the people about to sail for Normandy. Some of the ships were starting out, and I saw those still loading. I went up and down the wharves.

During the middle of the day, I came back here to the war room to see if any news was coming in, and I kept pretty close to my communications center.

Finally, along about six in the evening, I went over to an airfield from which American airborne troops were starting. I couldn't go to all the fields because there were too many of them.

Cheering

But I did get to visit the 101st Airborne Division, and it was a fine experience. It was getting along now about ten o'clock, I guess, maybe ten-thirty. They were getting ready and getting to their planes. They were camouflaged, their faces blackened. They saw me, of course, and they recognized me, and they said, "Now quit worrying, General, we'll take care of this thing for you." It was a good feeling. So then, they started off, and I watched them out of sight.

It took me a couple of hours to get back to my headquarters, and shortly after I got back, I received my first news. Some of the air troopers had landed in France.

NEXT: Gen. Eisenhower tells of the agonizing days and hours before a decision was finally reached on the exact date for the Normandy invasion.

They saw me and said: 'Now, quit worrying, General, we'll take care of this thing for you.' "

Most Sadistic Of SS Guards

Death Camp Trial Testimony Pinpoints Nazi

By LOYAL GOULD

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —Five months of grim testimony have pinpointed Wilheim Boger as the main defendant in the long Auschwitz death camp trial.

Witness after witness singles out Boger as the most sadistic of the 21 former SS guards and functionaries accused of participating in the murder of more than four million Auschwitz inmates.

Their minute descriptions of the 58-year-old ex-SS sergeant and Gestapo agent killing adult and child inmates by hanging, beating, kicking, starving, suffocating, shooting and gassing frequently leave presiding Judge Hans Hofmeyer pale faced and gasping in horror.

Tears trickle down Hofmeyer's cheeks when witnesses describe what they call the "Boger swing," a torture apparatus to which inmates were bound and then beaten with such force that the victims swung back and forth.

Boger listens intently. He rarely shows any emotion. Sometimes he sneers and smirks, especially when one of his former victims breaks down and weeps on seeing him again after nearly 20 years.

Now and then Boger jumps to his feet, jerks his full six feet two inches to rigid attention and screams that the witness is lying.

He once advised Hofmeyer there would be far less juvenile delinquency if his "swing" were used on contemporary German youth "since beating never hurt anyone."

NEATLY DRESSED Wilhelm Boger shows no trace of the torture victims' blood which witnesses say used to drip from his hands, as he listens to testimony in the Auschwitz Death Camp trial in Frankfurt, Germany. At the left is a miniature of the "Boger Swing," a torture instrument which Boger still calls "my talking machine." Witnesses have pointed him out as the most sadistic of the 21 former SS guards and functionaries on trial for mass murder. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

WHAT TYPE?

What kind of a person is Boger, the man said to have frequently compared Jews and Slavs to "lice that must be stamped out?"

A former SS colleague in Auschwitz testified that he was an ideal family man—"a father who spent his free time with his wife and children instead of joining his comrades in the camp's club for sergeants."

He is said to have taken great care that his three daughters were reared in the strict Lutheran faith of their parents—"that they all joined hands with their parents in prayer to give thanks for their blessings before every meal."

The vine-covered bungalow inhabited by the Boger family just outside Auschwitz' main gates was equipped with unpainted wooden furniture issued by the SS quartermaster.

In contrast to this were Boger's interrogation quarters inside the camp. Former inmates say he furnished them lavishly with rich oriental rugs stolen from wealthy French Jews.

Witnesses say he dripped with the blood of his victims which he washed off with a brisk shower before slipping into a freshly laundered and pressed uniform for the evening's reunion with his family.

KIND HEARTED

Acquaintances of Mrs. Boger report she readily admits Auschwitz was no holiday center, but insists her husband is "too kind hearted" to have ever taken pride—as is charged—in his former title "the torture master of Auschwitz".

As an example of his kindness, she is reported to have pointed out that he was not at all angry on learning in pre-trial confinement that his oldest daughter had given birth to an illegitimate child fathered by a Sicilian laborer.

Boger gave his blessings to his grandchild, but forbade his daughter to marry the Sicilian as marriage with an Italian "would be a national disgrace."

"As a well brought up German girl, she followed his desires," said the acquaintance.

Boger claims that he merely followed orders in Auschwitz and only reverted to what he calls "sharper methods" when inmates refused to obey his orders.

He insists this was the case when he was "forced to take action" against inmates during the Auschwitz death march to Austria after the camp was partially evacuated in January 1945.

SHOT INMATES

Survivors of the death march testify that he daily shot hundreds of half starved prisoners who collapsed from exhaustion.

Records of the court show that Boger, son of a Stuttgart drunk, managed to complete about 11 years of school before becoming an apprentice salesman with a hometown firm. A brother, whom Boger refers to as "the black sheep of the family", was a procurer and petty thief who a petty thief who disappeared sometime during the Third Reich.

SS ELITE

In 1922 at the age of 16, Boger joined a Nazi youth organization in the fledging years of the Hitler movement. Eight years later, he became a member of the SS Elite Guard.

He frequently boasts to the court that he is "an old fighter," Nazi terminology for one who joined Hitler when he was still struggling for recognition.

With the Nazis in power in 1933, Boger became a Gestapo detective and, the prosecution says, delivered the first proof that he was a master of third-degree interrogation methods.

In 1941, he donned his SS uniform to join German forces marching on the Soviet Union. After nearly a year of fighting, he was wounded and sent to the Gestapo unit in Auschwitz.

After the war, he escaped an American prisoner of war camp and returned to Stuttgart where he joined under his own name a business firm as an office worker.

Acquaintances say he devoted the postwar years to his job, family and television viewing.

"He lived a typical middle class German life—sober, industrious and adhering to all the outward bourgeois virtues," a member of the prosecutor's staff said.

John Profumo — Year's Scandal

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—"I have been guilty of a grave misdemeanor. I cannot tell you of my deep remorse..."

With these words, a year ago this week, a British war minister whose feet had seemed to be on the road to the prime ministry acknowledged that he had lied in the House of Commons about his associations with a red-haired play girl.

It was the public beginning of British government, spawned black headlines all over the world, resulted in judicial proceedings and investigations, and wrecked lives.

And the end may not yet have been written: It may cost the Conservative party heavily in parliemantary elections this fall.

Those who played roles in the lightning-charged drama were giants of a sort—modern equivalents of characters in an ancient Greek tragedy.

One of them can be found in London's East End. There, a neatly dressed man with a modulated voice and a pleasant, side-ways smile gives advice and help to the poor.

This is John D. Profumo, suave, 49-year-old former war-minister tumbled from power because he lied to the House of Commons by denying his association with party girl Christine Keeler. Once Profumo seemed likely to become Britain's prime minister one day. He is still listed in the Who's Who for 1964. His beautiful wife, Valerie Hobson, the former actress who starred in the London production of "The King and I," remains by his side.

Profumo is engaged in the slow task of repairing his life. He spends five days a week, eight hours a day in Toynbee Hall, a settlement house, and draws no salary for his social work.

BLACK DAY

His black day was June 4, 1963 when he wrote his letter of resignation to Harold Macmillan, then prime minister. In it he said he had deceived the House of Commons in March. Gravely embarrassed politically, Macmillan accepted the resignation at once with these chilling words:

"This is a great tragedy for you, your family and your friends."

City For Atmosphere

She Brought Opera Back To Boston

By NANCY EATON

As founder, part-time conductor, full-time stage manager, producer, fund raiser and artistic director, she brings to the new Boston Opera Group an intense vitality and drive. In its six years of limited seasons, the group has been acclaimed as a fine addition to cultural Boston.

But Sarah Caldwell, 38 years old and 300 pounds, has larger ambitions for her company. Caught in a New York hotel room on her way from Baltimore to Boston to Europe, where she hoped to sign soprano Joan Sutherland for a return engagement in Boston, she huddled under a trench coat nursing a badly sprained ankle — "I make a loud thump when I fall."

Her eyes glowed as she spoke of her plans. She has dedicated her life to giving Boston a full season of lively opera theater. She hopes Boston, in turn, will provide a home where a group of singers can lead a stable, non-itinerant life, as they do in Europe, and "work together as an opera company for a style and life of their own."

She explained further. "We lose fine people to Europe, where they get absorbed into the communities. Opera is part of the daily life. In Hamburg, Germany, singers are stopped in the streets and thanked for their performances. There should be something like this here."

Boston, she thinks, is a good city to try to establish this kind of atmosphere. "It's a fascinating, vital city, very critical of itself with a positive feeling for the opera."

Sarah Caldwell came to Boston from Maryville, Mo., in 1943 to study violin. She met opera personality Boris Goldovsky, and under his influence switched her allegiance to grand opera.

She founded the opera group in 1957. That was the year that Boston shrugged its shoulders and tore down the historic old Boston Opera House. Miss Caldwell still mourns it.

"We're strong enough now to have prevented it if they'd tried to raze it this year, but that first year there was nothing we could do."

As a teacher of opera at Boston University, she gathered a determined coterie and set out "to utilize the techniques for selling green toothpaste to popularize opera."

The group's first thought was to do one beautiful production and invite everyone in the city. "That," said Miss Caldwell "was soon tempered by discretion — and reality."

THREE HUNDRED pounds of energy, Sarah Caldwell is founder, artistic director, producer, stage manager, sometimes conductor, and fund raiser of the Boston Opera Group, in Boston, Mass. With six limited seasons behind her, she hopes to establish a permanent opera company to become a part of the community, as opera singers do in Europe. Here, in a Japanese kimono, Miss Caldwell directs a rehearsal from her Hollywood type director's chair. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Reality meant money. When first organized, the group received a $5,000 gift. Its members spent the next five months raising another $1,000. After that, they turned to professionals for help.

Finally, on January 29, 1959, the Boston Opera Group had its formal opening night with a performance of "La Boheme."

As the company has expanded since that opening, so Sarah Caldwell's commitment to it has grown. Most of the year she works 18 hours a day for it. During off-season lulls she signs singers and lines up the next years' program, design and builds sets, studies scores.

During rehearsals and the performance season, she drops everything and practically lives at the theater. Each year, the season has grown.

In 1964, the opera group presented one performance each of five operas. Miss Caldwell staged them all, conducted two and did the English translation for one.

She prefers to present opera in English because "it is not possible to be concerned with the theatrical and emotional impact of opera if you are not concerned with the impact of the text. Besides," she added flippantly, "I like the cast to understand what they're singing."

Two performances each of six operas are planned for 1965.

Sarah Caldwell looks forward to the time — perhaps in 10 years — when her Boston Opera Group will be performing a full season in its own house in a stable, European - like atmosphere.

Bostonians may not now stop singers on the streets to thank them for performances, but, given time, Sarah Caldwell and the Boston Opera Group, they just might.

BOOKS

Further Fiction From Saroyan

ONE DAY IN THE AFTERNOON OF THE WORLD. By William Saroyan. Harcourt, Brace. $4.95.

In recent years the distance between the subject matter of a Saroyan memoir and the ingredients of a Saroyan novel has not been very great.

Once again he has composed a novel with a good many touches that Saroyan echoes of his own experiences. But that's not too unusual among writers.

This time the story is about a writer named Yep Muscat, visiting New York briefly from California.

In the professional field, he quarrels with a New York business man who has been a playbacker and wants to become a Broadway producer, using a play that he wants Yep to write. Yep blocks a deal with the movies over one of his earlier efforts, because he does not trust them. He carries through a deal with a television producer for a video play, allocating the proceeds to the Internal Revenue people, to whom he has been indebted for years.

On the personal side, he discovers an old Armenian friend named Zak, suddenly affluent because of a uranium find, and dreams about his youthful days with Zak. But especially, he visits with his son Van and daughter Rosey, who are in New York because their mother Laura, Yep's divorced wife — is trying to keep her stage career alive with a small part in a thoroughly bad play.

Yep's scenes with the two children are the best part of the story, perhaps because its hero — like the author — has that volatile sympathy which arises from the mercurial, Armenian temperament, fluctuating between desperate melancholy and exuberant job in life.

This isn't a major work, but it adds a little to the highly individualistic legend of Saroyan himself.

This Hero Has 'More Money' Than Sense

PERDITA, GET LOST. By Alan R. Jackson. Simon and Schuster. $3.95.

There was a time when the English had a monopoly on describing, against a background of London's smart set, the very foolish adventures of various young men — usually called Bertie or Freddie — who were endowed with more lucre than logic. So amusing, old chap.

Perhaps there is a Manhattan offshoot of this genre in Jackson's novel. For one of the three central figures is Jerrold (Jerry) Blake, a fortyish bachelor who keeps making shoals of money without trying, and divides his time between archeology and cafe society. (He has a butler, too.)

The others are Chan Cumings, a sweet (blonde) young thing who is a receptionist for an advertising agency, and Teddy Maitland, a copy apprentice for the same agency. The fun begins when they succeed in getting fired on the same day.

Teddy becomes involved with a predatory fashion designer, Carla Fabricant, by the simple device of walking into her chauffeur - driven limousine. Chan, meanwhile, is taken for a whirl by "Uncle Jerry."

There is a bit of farce about a seven-foot statute shipped from Greece as a thank-you for Blake's financing of a dig. The rest of the comedy develops from Blake's financing notion that he has to become a 20-year-old playboy to impress Chan.

Tribute To A Very Valiant Early-Day Star

My Aunt Maxine, by Diana Forbes - Robertson (Viking $7.50): A tribute to a valiant and wonderful person — Maxine Elliott, a trans-Atlantic star who hated the theater but used it as a stepping - stone to fortune and fame.

Miss Elliott established herself as a star through a conventional progression in the theater. Her main triumphs were scored in the United States, where she began life as Jeffie Dermot of Rockland, Maine, but the first time she saw England she knew her heart was really there.

She was married twice, to a New York lawyer and minor political figure named George MacDermott and to Nat C. Goodwin, a famous turn - of - the - century comedian.

As Goodwin's leading lady and as a star in her own right, Miss Elliott was able to accumulate capital which enabled her to quit the theater at a fairly early age.

Rumor has connected Miss Elliott with almost every prominent man of her era, but her own New England discretion makes it difficult to determine which if any of her relationships ever exceeded conventional bounds.

The number of wealthy and prominent men who undoubtedly found her a stimulating companion included King Edward VII, Winston Churchill and miscellaneous noble types including at least two earls, Rosebery and Curzon, who asked her to marry them. ("No, thanks ever so," said Miss Elliott).

William S. White Views Johnson

These are the measured opinions of a skilled political analyst, carefully observing the career of a born politician. The title is one pro's salute to another.

It is not a biography, although after the first five chapters White brings in as much of the biographical background as he needs to discuss Johnson's political history and philosophy.

White's approach is a blend of analysis and frank, personal admiration, so that it is doubly subjective. (White and Johnson have been friends since 1933, when the author was on The Associated Press staff in Washington and Johnson had just become a Texas congressman's secretary.) In other words, the book is not critical, in the literal sense, nor in the literary.

The author gives us a thorough study of the thoughts, attitudes, psychological and emotional reactions, training and political techniques of his subject, from New Deal days through the war, the Senate career, the Kennedy-Johnson campaign, the Kennedy administration and "The Crisis of Transfer."

Sometimes he makes penetrating, but highly personal, undocumented observations; the reader must assume that he speaks with the authority of long experience. He uses anecdotes freely, and sometimes analogy. For example, he says the "palace guard" in the Kennedy administration, at first a little suspicious of the new Vice President, finally grasped his intense loyalty and "began to see that Johnson was to Kennedy about what a tough and able regular Army top sergeant may be to a younger lieutenant not too long out of West Point."

White's personal evaluation is summed up in a statement that Johnson possesses the "high presidential art" of being able to effectuate policy, not just proclaim it.

This is like an experienced sports writer lucidly, and somewhat admiringly, analyzing the long career of the league's best quarterback. He gives you the thrill of the game, but he also makes you see both the man and the game with the eyes of an old pro.

Is Uris Today's Dickens?

ARMAGEDDON. By Leon Uris. Doubleday. $6.95.

It spans the time from 1944, in blacked - out Britain, to June of 1949, when the famous airlift broke the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

But mainly it is the story of bitter conflict between the Russians, who were determined to push the West out of Berlin, and the Americans, who managed to keep West Berlin alive. There are subthemes of the occupation forces, of German war guilt and conflicting ideologies of the West and the Communists.

Its hero is Sean O'Sullivan, a San Francisco Irishman whose brothers were war casualties, and who, as a military government officer, was close to all the maneuvers of the Cold War.

Like other Uris novels, it is huge (630 pages), crammed with action and crammed with characters, American, Russian and German. It resembles a cluster of connected novels. For example, O'Sullivan's preliminary experience as administrator of a German city, which other writers would have considered a complete novel, is only a prelude to the main action in Berlin.

With this book, after "Exodus" and "Mila 18," it would appear that in many respects Uris is to the mid-20th Century what another writer was to the last century.

That is, he writes popular fiction — not literary fiction — on topics close to the throb of the times. He revels in melodrama. He preaches and sentimentalizes, and unabashedly shuffles his unsubtle characters into formula situations. Aren't these among the things they were saying about a certain chronicler of the industrial revolution in Victorian England, a writer named Charles Dickens?

Quadrangle In Upset Belmont Victory

NEAR THE FINISH, Quadrangle (right) pounds ahead of second place Roman Brother in Saturday's Belmont. Quadrangle, timed in 2:28.2 for the mile and one-half, paid $15.10 for the upset win. (AP Wirephoto)

Triple Crown Bid By Dancer Foiled

NEW YORK (AP) — Quadrangle, a strapping bay colt from Paul Mellon's Rokeby Stables, spoiled Northern Dancer's bid for the Triple Crown Saturday when he won the 96th running of the $154,000 Belmont Stakes by two lengths at Aqueduct.

Northern Dancer, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, and the odds-on choice of the record Belmont Stakes crowd of 61,215, had to settle for third place as Roman Brother, the mighty mite from Louis Wolfson's Harbor View Farm came up for second place, four lengths in front of the Canadian-owned Dancer.

Manuel Ycaza sent Quadrangle over the grinding 1½-mile distance in 2:28 2-5 after racing close to the pace from the start. He earned $110,850, boosting his total winnings to $340,499. The Rokeby Stable colt, a son of Cohoes-Tap Day, by Bull Lea, had finished fifth in the Kentucky Derby and fourth in the Preakness before he came back a week ago for a powerful second against older horses in the Metropolitan Mile.

But Saturday was his day as he turned back the bid of Northern Dancer in a great stretch run.

Bill Shoemaker, astride the Hill Rise from George A. Pope Jr.'s El Peco Ranch, lodged a claim of foul against Bill Hartack, up on Northern Dancer. Shoemaker claimed the Dancer came over on his horse rounding the final turn, but the stewards allowed the order of finish to stand. That placed Brave Lad fifth, Orientalist sixth, Determined Man seventh and Shook eighth.

Quadrangle, trained by Elliott Burch, paid $15.10, $6.80 and $2.70. Roman Brother, an 889-pound package of dynamite piloted by Fernando Alvarez, paid $8.10 and $2.90. Northern Dancer, who went off the 4-5 choice, was $2.10 to show.

"He was running easy and could have taken the lead at any time," Ycaza said of his winner. "Orientalist, in front most of the way, was trying to bear out, but I decided not to make the move until I heard Northern Dancer coming on the outside at the three-eighths pole.

"Then I let him go. I hit him a couple of times and he pulled away.

"This horse has all the ability in the world. He can beat any horse in the land."

Orientalist, a 40-1 shot, showed the field through the first mile with a half mile in 49 seconds, the six furlongs in 1:14 4-5 and the mile in 1:39 2-5. But Ycaza had Quadrangle within striking distance from the start and Hartack never was for off the pace with Northern Dancer.

With one-half mile to go, Quadrangle was ready to take the lead from Orientalist with Northern Dancer less than a length back and Roman Brother lapping over him. At that point Hill Rise also was well-placed.

Rounding the final bend with one-quarter of a mile to go, Quadrangle started to open up daylight with Roman Brother second and the Dancer on the move.

For one-sixteenth of a mile it looked as if the Dancer would stage another of his sizzling finishes and give the sport its first Triple Crown winner since Citation in 1948, but Quadrangle was full of run.

His margin with one-eighth of a mile to go was only half a length but he crossed the line running strongly as Roman Brother came up to take second place from the tiring Dancer.

QUADRANGLE, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, begins to pull away from Belmont favorite Northern Dancer (2) and Roman Brother, on the rail. Quadrangle went on to win and spoil the Dancer's attempt for the triple crown. (AP Wirephoto)

QUARTER-MILE TO GO

Manuel Ycaza Knew Belmont Won Early

NEW YORK (AP) — Manuel Ycaza, who ruined Northern Dancer's bid for horse racing's Triple Crown by riding Quadrangle to a surprise victory in the Belmont Stakes Saturday, knew he was home with one-quarter of a mile to go.

"This was the most relaxed ride I ever had," said the little Panamanian jockey who picked up more than $11,000 in 2:28 2-5 for his share of the purse. "I never worried for one minute until I saw Northern Dancer coming fast on the outside and running third.

"I was a littl bit worried then, so I hit my horse, but not too hard. He doesn't respond to the whip, you see. So I hit him lightly twice and he really let out. Man, did he fly! I knew we were home then.

NORTHERN DANCER . . . Tried Hard

"I kept calling to him 'Let's get the Belmont, let's get the Belmont.'

Quadrangle, a 3-year-old son of Cohoes, finished two lengths ahead of Roman Brother, with Northern Dancer, 4-5 favorite off his victories in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, third, four lengths behind.

Bill Hartack, who had ridden the Canadian-bred Northern Dancer in the Derby and Preakness, took the defeat graciously.

"We have no excuses," he said. "He tried hard. He showed he could run a mile and a half, but not fast enough."

Asked if he was disappointed over his failure to sweep the Triple Crown, Hartack said:

"How could it be a disappointment? My horse ran his heart out for me. I'm sorry he didn't win but I'm by no means disappointed. He just wasn't good enough."

Hartack, who has had his tiffs with newspapermen, couldn't resist giving the press a slight dig.

I knew we were in trouble when all the newspapermen picked us," he said with a grin.

Reds' Hurlers Combine To Blank Cards

CINCINNATI (AP)—John Tsitouris and Sammy Ellis combined on a five-hitter Saturday night as Cincinnati blanked St. Louis 3-0, two of the runs scoring on Jerry Buchek's error in the first inning.

Tsitouris left the game in the eighth when his arm tightened after rain forced a 22-minute delay. Ellis retired the Cardinals on two hits in the final two innings.

The Reds scored all of their runs in the first off Ray Washburn who pitched a four-hitter. Tommy Harper's single, a hit batsman and Gordy Coleman's double brought in the first run.

After a walk to Frank Robinson loaded the bases, Buchek fumbled John Edwards' two-out grounder, allowing Vada Pinson and Coleman to score.

All of the hits off Tsitouris were singles, two in the fourth and two in the seventh. The Cardinals loaded the bases with one out in the fourth, but Tsitouris, now 2-3, induced Johnny Lewis to force Bill White at the plate and got Buchek on a fly to Pinson.

After the first inning, Washburn gave only singles to Edwards in the fourth and Tsitouris in the fifth. He suffered his third defeat in five decisions.

Detroit Knocks White Sox From First Place, 4-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick McAuliffe scored on Ron Hansen's error with two out in the ninth inning Saturday, giving Detroit a 4-3 triumph over the Chicago White Sox that ended the Tigers' losing string at six games.

The defeat dropped the White Sox out of first place in the American League, one percentage point behind Baltimore, which nipped Mnnesota 2-1.

George Thomas singled with one out for the Tigers but was forced at second by McAuliffe. Billy Bruton batted for relief pitcher Larry Sherry and popped to short center field. Hansen dropped the ball, allowing McAuliffe to score all the way from first.

The Tigers, down 3-0, tied the game in the fifth inning. Jake Wood singled home two runs with the bases loaded before Norm Cash singled across the tying run.

Falstaff Tops Ouachita 2-0 For 5-0 Mark

Falstaff scored single runs in the first and third innings to blank Ouachita Bank 2-0 in a splendid pitchers duel and remain the only unbeaten American Legion Amateur League team here Saturday night.

Jerry Godwin, a lefthanded one-time Northeast State pitching ace, went all the way for the win, hurling a neat two hitter. Godwin, walked none and sent 16 batters down swinging.

He was opposed on the hill by George Moore who did almost as well. Moore, who also went the route, allowed only three hits, walked two and struckout 13.

Fileds scored in the first inning when he singled, stole second and scored on an error.

He did virtually the same thing in the third inning, getting on with a single and touring the bases on another error.

Morgan First In 110 Highs In NAIA Meet

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP)—Tireless John Camien and favored Bob Hayes led an assault on National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics records at the 13th running of its track and field championships here Saturday night.

Camien, running easily, outdistanced the field in the 1,500-meter run to set his second record of the meet. Friday night the Emporia, Kan., State distance ace set a new standard of 4:25.0 in the 5,000-meter run.

Camien's time of 3:48.3 snapped an eight-year record of 3:51.3 set by Billy Tidwell of Emporia in 1956.

Hayes, the Florida A&M flash, got off to a quick jump in the 100-meter run and finished four yards ahead of Ed Roberts, North Carolina College. Hayes clipped a tenth of a second off the 10.3 mark set by Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian in 1956.

Don Owens, Grambling College, La., who tied the meet 400-meter mark Friday night, set a record with a clocking of 46.6. The previous high was also shared by Bill Miller of Southern U., set in 1960.

For the second straight night running conditions were near perfect with temperatures in the 70s and wind between four and eight miles an hour.

In a triple-jump preliminary, Norman Tate of North Carolina College jumped 51-9 for a meet mark. The fine leap, on his third try, was only a quarter of an inch off the American collegiate mark set by Luthern Hayes, University of Southern California, in 1961.

In the shotput, Lee Johnson, University of Redlands, Calif., upset NAIA titlist Dave Price of California Western. Johnson put the shot 58-5 to edge Price by two inches.

In other events, Gary Wilson of Oklahoma Baptist won the 800-meter run, Roger Morgan, Northeast Louisiana State, took the 110-meter high hurdles and Ed Roberts of North Carolina College won the 200-meter dash.

Roger Sayers, Omaha University, defending champion in the 100- and 200-yard events, was not able to run because of a severely pulled leg muscle.

Morgan's winning time was 14.4 seconds against a 10 mile per hour wind. Dalton LeBlanc finished third in the race with a 14.6 clocking.

Yankees Trim Los Angeles, 2-0, In 15th Inning

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Elston Howard's two-out, two-run double in the 15th inning carried the New York Yankees to a 2-0 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels Saturday night despite a brilliant pitching performance by the Angels' Dean Chance.

The Yankees, ending the Angel winning streak at four games, didn't get a hit off Chance until the seventh inning and made only three before he was removed for a pinch hitter in the 14th.

HOLDS 3 STROKE EDGE

Tony Lema In Front In Thunderbird Golf

RYE, N.Y. (AP) — Champagne Tony Lema pulled off another dramatic eagle in the clutch for a two-under-par 70 Saturday and increased his lead to three strokes through the third round of the $100,000 Thunderbird Golf Classic. He had a 54-hole score of 205, 11 under par.

Just when pursuers were breathing hotly down his neck the slender slylist from San Leandro, Calif., rolled in a 20-foot eagle putt on the ninth hole, and the pressure was off.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, his putter ice cold, dropped from the running with a 74 for 213, eight shots off the pace, but big Jack Nicklaus rallied for a 68 which put him back into the fight at 210.

When Lema knocked in a four-foot putt for a hard-earned par on the final hole, he found himself three shots ahead of former footballer Mike Souchak and Bobby Nichols, tied at 208 going into Sunday's climactic round for the $20,000 first prize.

Nichols, starting off with a 20-foot birdie putt and scrambling most of the way, shot a 70. Souchak, the one-time Duke University end, fired a 71.

Big George Bayer came out of the pack with a streak of four birdies in a row for a strong move at the lead, but he three-putted two of the last three holes — the 16th and 18th — for a 68 which put him into a three-way tie at 209.

At the 209 figure also were Ken Venturi, San Francisco's hard-luck guy who, with Souchak, started the way two shots back of Lema, and Bob Duden, the little Portland, Ore., pro who putts croquet-style.

Venturi shot an even par 72, after a front nine 37, and Duden came in with his second straight 70.

Nicklaus, playing better golf each day after an opening round 73, was tied at 210 with U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, Tommy Jacobs — each shooting a 71 — and Phil Rodgers, who had 72.

The third round over the hilly, 6,573-yard Westchester Country Club course started under cloudy skies in winds that whipped up gusts of 20 miles an hour. It was drizzling slightly when Lema came in with the final threesome.

Lema started out conservatively, playing even par golf as if daring his pursuers to catch him.

Bayer, Rodgers and Nichols were making threatening gestures when Lema, after shooting eight consecutive pars, came to the uphill, 480-yard ninth hole, a par five.

The tall Californian split the fairway with a 260 yard drive and then laced a four-wood to the green 20 feet fro mthe cup.

He rolled in the putt for his eagle while a large part of the record 18,986 gallery was lined along the fairway and huging the green.

The spectacular shot was reminiscent of the two he made on the finishing holes Friday when he birdied the 17th and eagled the 18th and surged past a tightly packed field into first place.

Lema took three putts on the 11th for his only bogey. But he got the stroke right back on the par five 12th which he birdied with two putts from 12 feet, almost sinking his second eagle.

He parerd in the rest of the way, scrambling from the rough on the final hole to salvage his par.

Giants Take 1st On Haller's Blow

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Haller's two-run homer in the ninth inning carried San Francisco to a 4-2 victory over Philadelphia Saturday that vaulted the Giants past the Phils into first place in the National League.

Haller's blow followed a single by Jesus Alou and came after the Phillies had kayoed Jack Sanford and tied the score at 2-2 with a run in the last of the eighth.

Southpaw Billy O'Dell, who relieved Sanford, earned his first victory of the year, while Ed Roebuck, giving up his first runs of the season in 17 innings, took his first loss.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Wes Covington doubled off the right field wall, moved to third on Tony Gonzalez' bloop single, and scored on a sacrifice fly by John Herrnstein.

The Giants tied the score off Dennis Bennett in the fourth as Orlando Cepeda singled and Jim Hart slammed a triple to the 405-foot sign in center field.

Alou broke the deadlock in the seventh with his first major league home run, a shot onto the left field roof just inside the foul pole. The run looked big as Sanford held the Phillies without another hit from the second through the seventh.

But in the eighth, Cookie Rojas doubled to center and scored on Richie Allen's single.

Bleckinger Provides Big Tennis Upset

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Dan Bleckinger of Oshkosh, Wis., provided the major upset in the Gulf States tennis tournament Saturday by winning from top-seeded Lee Fentress of Baton Rouge in the men's singles semifinals.

Fentress took the first set 8-6 and fourth-seeded Bleckinger the second set 8-6. Fentress then defaulted in the third set, probably because of the heat.

Bleckinger will meet third-seeded Richard Carter of Baton Rouge in Sunday's finals. Carter eliminated second-seeded Lee Kantrow of Baton Rouge 7-5, 7-1.

Opera House Is Hot Item

With Sam Hanna

In Legislative Halls

If the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission headquarters will ever be moved to Baton Rouge where it rightfully belongs, it'll take something like the hot Opera House bill to do it.

One of the biggest floor fights of the legislative session in Baton Rouge so far was the scrap over a bill by Rep. Edward Lebreton of New Orleans to convert the old Civil Courts building in New Orleans into an Opera House.

Louisiana's wildlife department is located in the Civil Courts building at 400 Royal Street in New Orleans. But of all places to put a wildlife department, this is the worst one.

Located in the French Quarter, the department is out of position to work like it should with other state departments located at the state capitol in Baton Rouge.

Numerous reasons can be projected on why the wildlife department shouldn't be in New Orleans, but we think the best one is that the department should be in Baton Rouge where it can work closely with other departments on a day-to-day basis.

Lawmakers visiting the capitol could reach the wildlife department there, and in turn the wildlife department could become better acquainted with members of the Legislature, whose votes can be of benefit or damaging to wildlife legislation.

A lot of people recognize this need, including some members of the Legislature, but for the most part there's always that question of what the state would do with the old Civil Courts building and where would the wildlife department be placed in Baton Rouge.

So along comes Eddie Lebreton with a bill to make an Opera House out of the wildlife building in New Orleans. He said the project would take about $3.5-million.

When this fugure was tossed out, the House quickly amended the bill to prohibit the use of any state funds in the conversion. And that will probably end that.

There is a lot of controversey around the question of converting the building into an Opera House. Possibly it's not the thing to do with the building, which is valuable property for the state.

But what we say is this. If the wildlife department stands a prayer of being moved to the capital city, then it'll take an act of the state to make other use of the building.

Louisiana could sell the building in New Orleans and use the funds to build a wildlife department headquarters in Baton Rouge. But in the past, the New Orleans delegation fought the proposed move from New Orleans.

The Orleans delegation, however, supported the proposed conversion of the building to an Opera House.

Eventually, the Orleans people will have to mature to the point of realizing that the department is out of position, that the best interests of the people would be served by taking the department to the capitol.

This is a project that could be carried out if the people wanted it badly enough. Have you ever mentioned it to your representative or senator?

Bills On Wildlife

Over 50 bills have been introduced in the current session of the Legislature affecting wildlife in some shape or fashion, but the Louisiana Wildlife Federation is pushing only a few.

In talking to Charley Bosch, the federation's executive secretary, at Baton Rouge this past week, we learned from Charley that the bill the federation thinks is the most important may open up more land for the sportsman.

This bill would relieve the landowner of any responsibility over the sportsman while hunting or fishing on his property. In other words, at the present time, if you are injured on a man's property while hunting or fishing, you could go to court and possibly gain over the landowner.

But this bill would relieve the landowner of that liability. Charley Bosch explained that Tennessee adopted this law a couple of years ago and since then about one million acres of land have been opened to the public.

Posted signs will come down in lots of places in Louisiana if the bill passes, according to Bosch.

Incidentially, it was introduced by three of our area lawmakers, including Sens. Spencer Myrick, Oak Grove, Charles Brown, Tallulah, and Howard M. Jones, St. Joseph. Sen Jesse Knowles of Lake Charles also is a co-sponsor.

Charley Bosch also emphasized the importance of a measure offered by Rep. Eugene McGehee of Baton Rouge. The bill spells out eight minor violations — such as fishing without a license — that could be tried by a justice of the peace.

At present, all wildlife violations must be taken to district court, which in some areas of Louisiana, is overcrowded with cases now. McGehee's bill would permit the state or parish to take cases involving the eight minor violations to the justice of the peace or to district court.

A $25 fine is attached.

The wildlife federation believes that the bill would enable better protection of our wildlife resources.

These are the major wildlife bills in the current session. Why don't you ask your representative and senator to vote for both of them?

Little Man's Corner

The elements disturbed the fishing for awhile, but the little men made news afield.

Out at Black Bayou, the big fishing rodeo sponsored by the Ouachita Wildlife Unit was postponed last Sunday due to the rainy weather. Now the club plans to hold the rodeo on another day in the future.

But Black Bayou has produced some good catches this week. For instance, Bill Poland of Monroe landed two bass that weighed seven pounds together.

But J. C. Zagone, developing into one of the better bass fisherman, of Monroe came out with another big bass. This one weighed 5-lb., 7-oz., landed at Black Bayou.

I. M. Smith, also a local fisherman, caught the limit of white perch two days running.

But the largest bass report of the week came from Bussey Brake at Bastrop. Jerry W. Elridge, landed a 7½-pound bass at Bussey last Monday.

At Old River in East Carroll Parish, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cooper of Lake Providence caught 20 white perch trolling. David Coleman of Denham Springs got 12 bass in the big lake, then came back another day and landed eight.

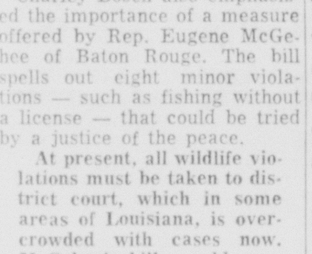

Mrs. Morris Coleman of Lake Providence caught 25 white perch at Hollybrook.

At Lake St. John, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Saxon got the limit of bream and catfish. C. D. Newman Jr. and C. D. Newman Sr. landed the limit of bass.

Two Natchez fisherman, Rudy Case and Paul Klutts, got the limit of white perch at Deer Park near Vidalia. Charlie Willians, Mrs. Eunice Brown and Sterling and Opal Brown, plus Percy May and his wife Betty, all got the limit of bream at Deer Park.

On Lake Concordia, Ed Carol, Otis Charles Smith, Eunich Smith and Ed Fontenberry, all of Ferriday, got the limit of bass.

The solunar periods, during which there is maximum fish and wildlife activity, are printed below. Major periods began at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours. Minor periods are shorter.

WEST MONROE SPEEDWAY

Stock Car Races Are Slated Today

West Monroe Speedway's stock car thriller is scheduled again this afternoon after a rain out last Sunday.

J. Roy Smith, president of Monroe Speedway, said the lineup for today includes some of the top racers on the stock car circuit. "Several top drivers have entered cars for this week's race and all signs point to a thriller," Smith declared.

The admission gate is scheduled to open at 11:30, one hour earlier than usual and two ticket windows will serve the fans this week, Smith said. "In the past we have experienced some congestion due to a large crowd jamming the one admission window."

Time trials will begin at 1:30 and the contests will kickoff at 2.

Smith said the speedway, recently built off the Jonesboro road in West Monroe, "is now fully organized and equipped to service the many racing fans in this area."

Touching back on today's race, Smith said "some of the finest stock car men in the South have been scheduled to perform this week. Several new entries have been putting cars together for today's events. There will be somewhere between 20 to 30 cars in action."

Last week's contest was rained out. "I hope we get a break this week and have good weather. We don't mind it being cloudy but we just can't run in the rain.

"However, a good shower Sunday morning would be fine and would even help our track," he decalred.

Rookie Belts Indians Over Senators, 6-4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rookie Bob Chance belted a homer, double and two-sung single Saturday in backing the Cleveland Indians to a 6-4 victory over the Washington Senators.

Southpaw Jack Kralick won his sixth of seven decisions and ran his scoreless inning string to 16 innings, but failed to finish. He was tagged for Chuck Cottier's homer in the eighth and four straight hits in the ninth before giving way to Don McMahon.

Chance, a 222-pound outfielder, accounted for the first Cleveland run in the second with a single off Bennie Daniels after John Romano doubled and Fred Whitfield singled.

Dodgers Bench Stars To Beat New York, 9-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy Davis and Frank Howard were benched Saturday and the shake-up paid off for the Los Angeles Dodgers in a 9-2 victory over the New York Mets.

Wally Moon, who played right field in place of Howard, singled home two runs in the Dodgers' three-run third inning. And rookie Wes Parker, who took Davis' place in left field, singled in the fourth and scored on John Roseboro's double. Parker also singled in the sixth, starting another three-run burst that knocked out loser Jack Fisher.

The shake-up by Manager Walt Alston, following Friday night's 8-0 shutout by the Mets, was a drastic one for the World Series champions. Tommy Davis was the National League batting champion the last two years and Howard is the team's leading home run slugger.

Phil Ortega, who survived a bases loaded situation in the second when he struck out Fisher, was knocked out by the Mets in the fifth.

Winner Bob Miller came in and fanned Joe Christopher, leaving the tying runs on base, and also turned back a Met threat in the sixth.

Baltimore Nips Minnesota, 2-1 On Five-Hitter

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Steve Barber and Stu Miller combined for a five-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Minnesota Twins 2-1 Saturday.

Miller came on in the eighth with one out after Zoilo Versalles singled and Barber gave up his fourth walk to Rich Rollins, then went 3-0 to Tony Oliva. Miller completed the walk to Olive but then Bob Allison hit into an inning-ending double play.

Until the eighth, the only hard blow against Barber was Allison's 12th homer in the fourth inning. Barber evened his record at 2-2 while Dick Stigman dropped his fourth in six decisions.

OUT FOR DISCIPLINARY REASONS

Loss Of Six Players Hurts Miami Football, Says Coach

MIAMI (AP)—Coach Charlie Tate said Saturday the Miami football team has been drastically weakened at its strongest positions by an Honor Council request that six players withdraw from the school.

"We lost four boys we had counted on heavily, including two first-string linemen" Tate said. "We were hit where we thought we were the strongest.

"I would say that our strength has been reduced 20 per cent."

The players were not named, under a policy of the Honor Council not to identify students involved in disciplinary action. Dr. Henry King Stanford, the university president, ordered Tate not to disclose the names.

Eleven students in all were charged before the council with violations of the honor code, apparently for cribbing on final exams. Two were exonerated and the others were asked to leave the school. They would be eligible to apply for readmission next Feb. 1.

"We didn't have much depth," said Tate, a former Georgia Tech assistant hired in December to succeed Andy Gustafson, who became full-time athletic director.

"That's where we got hurt—in depth. We get injuries in key spots where these boys played and we get down to players who are really inferior.

"We had a young squad to start with. There were only five seniors in the top 14. But I was pleased with the enthusiasm the boys showed in spring practice.

"We didn't expect to be great, but we thought that if too many didn't get hurt, we would do well. Now, I just don't know. It's hard to measure the damage at this time.

"This is one of those embarrassing things you hope you'll never have to go through. It makes you sick.

"We thought we had done a good job in bringing these boys around academically. Some of them were kids who had not caused us any kind of trouble. We had warned them against such a thing as this. But you can't hold their hands every minute.

Last Inning Hit By Maye Gives Braves 6-5 Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lee Maye slashed a two-run single with two out in the ninth inning Saturday, boosting Milwaukee to a 6-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The Braves' rally nullified a four-run explosion in the seventh that put the Cubs ahead 5-4.

Chicago reliever Lew Burdette, acquired from St. Louis earlier this week and a former Brave, retired the first two Milwaukee batters in the ninth before Mike de la Hoz singled.

Lindy McDaniel replaced Burdette, and Rico Carty beat out an infield hit, moving pinch runner Woody Woodward to second. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch before Maye singled.

Cassius Clay Tames Unruly Egyptian Camel

CAIRO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay got the lip from a camel Saturday but as usual the champ got in the last word.

Wearing the sweeping robes presented him in Ghana, Clay journeyed outside Cairo to view the pyramids. Like countless other tourists, he boarded a camel.

With Cassius aboard, the camel reared up, began to prance around and make noises like only a camel can. The camel's owner sped to the rescue only to be waved away by Clay, holding on bravely and gradually taming the ship of the desert.

"I'm the champ," proclaimed Cassius, "and I can tame a camel just like I handled Sonny Liston."

Homers Carry Red Sox Over Athletics, 8-6

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Home runs by Tony Conigliaro, Dick Stuart and Lee Thomas in the first two innings powered the Boston Red Sox past Kansas City 8-6 Saturday.

Conigliaro smashed his eighth home run following Chuck Schilling's lead off walk in Boston's five-run first. After one out, Stuart connected for his 11th homer. He also singled in a run in Boston's three-run second and scored on Thomas' fourth homer.

The Athletics knocked starter Jack Lamabe from the mound in the seventh when they rallied for four runs. George Williams drove in a run with a single and scored on a double play. Then after Nelson Mathews doubled, Ed chales homered over the left field fence.

PENNEL: 'I'LL WIN IN TOKYO'

Confident Fred Hansen Says He Should Go 17-6 In Future

HOUSTON (AP) — Confident Fred Hansen predicted Saturday he could vault 17 and a half feet.

The Rice university graduate student rode his fiberglass pole to a height of 17 feet, 1 inch Friday night, higher than any other man.

Hansen's effort came at a U. S. Track and Field Federation district championships. It was a quarter of an inch higher than the pending world record set by John Pennel of Northeast Louisiana State last year.

And Pennel, the only other vaulter to hit 17 feet, did it with one of Hansen's fiberglass poles. Last year Pennell borrowed one of Hansen's sticks and set his mark. He liked the pole so well he still has it.

"In fact, he still owes the Rice athletic department a pole." Hansen said.

Pennel competed Friday night at the Compton, Calif., relays. He sat on the sidelines while others struggled to get over 15-6 then missed all three of his own tries at that height. He has been plagued since mid-winter with injuries.

Pennel and Hansen both competed at the Modesto, Calif., relays two weeks ago and the Florida native then predicted that Hansen would clear 17 feet in the near future.

He also rated Don Meyers of Boulder, Colo., as a potential 17-foot vaulter.

"But no matter what they do, I'll win the gold medal in Tokyo," said Pennel Saturday when told of Hansen's achievement.

"It's progress," he said. "It doesn't throw you over the bar like a lot of people think. Vaulting is much more technical now. It will get better, too."

Hansen, 23, son of a Cuero, Tex., turkey raiser, gave a light rain that fell on Jeppesen Stadium some of the credit for his history-making leap.

"Conditions were ideal," he said. "The rain cooled things off and there was no wind at all to bother us."

LOW AND LOW: An uncluttered roof line emphasizes the horizontal silhouette of this tidy three-bedroom home. Native stone and vertical siding beneath the portico provide nice contrast. The architect is Lester Cohen.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Ranch Dwelling Sparkles With 'Look Of Success'

From its low and crisp horizontal lines to its imaginative room layout, today's House of the Week gives an impression of youth, freshness, and success.

At the same time there are enough traditional influences in the design to assure its popularity for years to come; in other words, to guarantee a good resale value.

Architect Lester Cohen produced the design, H-33 in the weekly series, after a study of the living patterns and needs of moderately successful young families. At 2,011 square feet it is comfortable, but not overly large. Its floor plan is interesting, but designed for easy housekeeping — without domestic help. The exterior has a definite look of quality, but the materials are of the low maintenance type.

The house contains three bedrooms, 2½ baths, living room, dining room, kitchen with dinette space, foyer, family room, main level laundry and mud room, and an attached two-car garage.

It has a center hall plan with the living room stretching from the foyer to the rear terrace, and the kitchen located in front with the dinette overlooking the front portico.

The bedrooms are arranged nicely in a separate wing, with the children's bedrooms farthest removed from any living area noise. All the bedrooms have copious closet space and each is well ventilated. The master bedroom, in fact, has sliding glass doors opening onto a recessed section of the rear terrace, a delightful touch especially to be enjoyed on cool summer evenings and sunny Sunday mornings.

Over-all dimensions of the house are 92' wide by 37' 4" deep. A clean roof line emphasizes the long, low silhouette. Vertical siding on the portico contrasts pleasantly with the general horizontal lines of the house.

The living area of this home is, in Cohen's architectural eye, shaped like an H. The family room and living room form the vertical lines and the dining room is the connecting bar.

The shape follows a natural pattern, and the kitchen fits into it nicely as a housekeeping hub for the enire living area. A four-stool snack bar divides family room and kitchen, ideal for quick lunches and also a broad counter top for serving in the dining room.

Right off the kitchen is a mainlevel laundry with a mud closet. The side service entry is here, so are the basement stairs and an indoor entry to the garage.

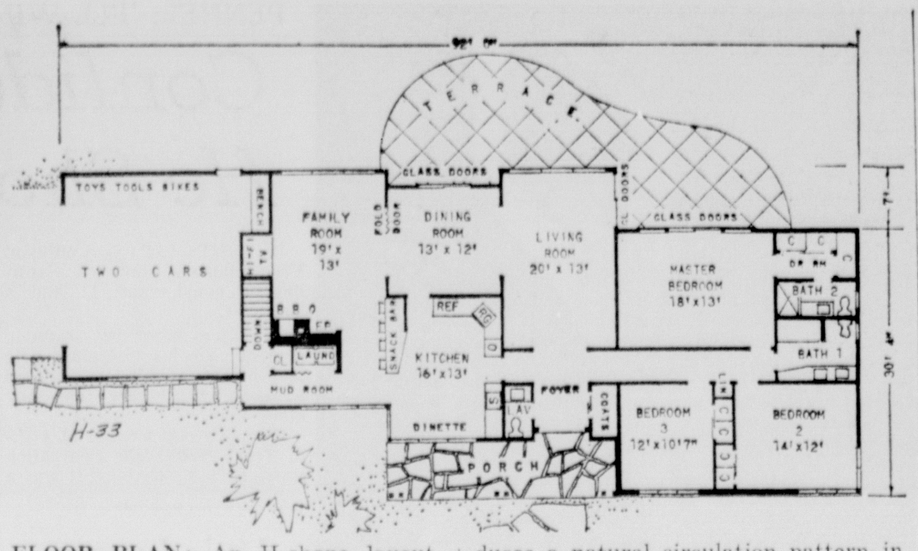

Behind the laundry wall, in the family room, is a fireplace with a built-in indoor barbecue. An alcove for a hi-fi or TV also is in the family room.

All the rooms across both the front and the rear of the house have broad expanses of glass. The kitchen and service area are especially bright; and the dining room and living room have sliding glass doors leading to the rear terrace.

The master bedroom, with its glass entry to the terrace, has a full bath attached. Its three closets are arranged to form a small dressing room, leaving the bedroom walls free of closet doors and thus more adaptable to furniture arranging.

The main bathroom, back-to-back with the master bath for the sake of economy, is only a few steps from all the bedrooms and completely out of view from both the living and family rooms. The lavatory, or powder room, also is well located for daytime use from both the living room and kitchen. ¼

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-33.

FLOOR PLAN: An H-shape layout, with the family and living rooms forming the vertical lines and the dining room forming the connecting bar, produces a natural circulation pattern in the living area of this home. Total square footage is 2,011.

SENATOR LONG SAYS

Wallace May Want Off Ballot In State

WASHINGTON — Sen. Russell B. Long (D) La., says that Alabama Gov. George Wallace may want to reconsider his plan to run in Louisiana now that Sen. Barry Goldwater (R) Ariz., appears headed for the GOP nomination.

The senator said that Wallace and Goldwater would split the conservative vote if they run in the November election in Louisiana.

"That would be to President Johnson's advantage," said Long, who supports the chief executive on most issues.

"Now, Gov. Wallace may conclude that he would serve his cause better by not running in Louisiana . . . and letting the conservative vote fall together."

"But that's his decision to make," Long commented. "If he runs, he'll get a lot of votes because Gov. Wallace is popular all through the south at this time."

He noted that Goldwater's candidacy would mark the "first time that a Republican candidate had the courage to support a position that the south could approve — or come closer to it than the Democratic candidate would."

Long said he believes Goldwater's victory in the California Republican primary last Tuesday" will make a lot of difference in the national election."

"I think President Johnson has been supporting this civil rights bill and will continue to support it because he thinks he's got to do that to be elected.

"That was not the position he took when he was senator from Texas. He helped fight the FEPC bill and actually joines us in filibustering against the bill when he first came here in 1949. So my thought is that this (Goldwater strength) will take the pressure off President Johnson as far as the civil rights bill is concerned and, in some respects, might help us moderate the bill."

LBJ's Daughter To Try Fishing

HONOLULU (UPI) — Lynda Bird Johnson, elder daughter of the President, plans to try big game fishing off the famed Kona coast of the island of Hawaii during her visit here later this month.

Lynda has accepted an invitation to be keynote speaker at a "Little White House Conference of Children and Youth" at the University of Hawaii June 13.

AGAINST RIGHTS BILL

State Senators Ask 'Bitter End' Stand

WASHINGTON — Louisiana's senators called Saturday for a "bitter end" stand by Southerners against the civil rights bill even if a cloture move is approved to shut off debate.

In separate statements, Sens. Allen J. Ellender and Russell B. Long said they will join a concerted effort to delay the bill with amendments designed to eliminate provisions that are "exclusively against the South."

Long stated that he has about 50 amendments already introduced in the Senate and that about 450 more can be called up even if the cloture vote move scheduled for Tuesday is successful.

One would repeal a series of executive orders issued by President Kennedy in 1962 and 1963 which were aimed at stopping discrimination in sales of houses insured under the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration mortgage insurance programs.

These orders, Long said, "would say that a builder couldn't sell just to whites or just to colored, as the case may be. If my amendment carries, why at least we'll have one good thing in that civil rights bill that will assure a man he can live among people of his own choosing."

Another Long amendment would ensure a jury trial to persons held in contempt of court in racial cases. The right to such a trial, Long said, is "guaranteed three times in the constitution, once in the constitution itself and twice in the Bill of Rights — but that doesn't keep these people (the bill's supporters) from trying to take it away from a man on the altar of civil rights."

Long said the chances are that the southern bloc could hold out 10 days or even longer after a cloture vote before the senate votes on the bill itself. "I think that most of the southerners will want to hold out to the very bitter end," he said.

Both Senators were sharply critical of the compromise bill offered by GOP leader Everett Dirksen (R) Ill. Ellender said the new version is a "ruse" which re-writes the section establishing a fair employment practices commission to force non - discriminatory hiring by businesses in interstate commerce.

The new version, Ellender said, "makes it apply almost exclusively in the south . . . . Every effort has been made to ensure that the bill will be virtually unworkable in those northern states where there may be a need for it, but at the same time its full strength will be directed against the south."

He added: "In my view, if this package of hypocrisy is to become the law of the land, it should be made the law of all the land, and not just for the south."

Diana Jordan Becomes Bride Of John Varner Jr.

Sunburst arrangements of light pink gladioli and blush pink candles in wrought iron candlebra draped with southern smilax formed a setting in First Christian Church, Monroe for the wedding of Miss Diana Sue Jordan and John W. Varner Jr., on Thursday, June 4 at 5:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon P. Jordan, 604 Riverbend Drive, West Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Varner, 208 Egan Street, Monroe.

Rev. John O. Stewart performed the double ring vows following a concert of nuptial music by Mrs. Harold Shepherd, organist and Mrs. Jane Wroten, aunt of the groom, who was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white bridal satin designed with scoop neckline and long sleeves tapered to petal points over the hands. Deep side pleats in the controlled skirt swept to the back for added fullness forming a court train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and for adornment she wore a topaz necklace set in a mounting fashioned from her grandmother's wedding ring. She carried a white orchid in a cluster of lily of the valley atop a pearl-covered Bible.

Miss Alice Jordan, sister of the bride, who served as maid of honoor, wore a candle pink embossed cotton satin frock, styled with scoop neckline, brief sleeves and controlled street-length skirt. Completing her costume she wore a picture hat of self material, white gloves and pink satin slippers. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Marion Ashley, Mrs. June Taylor and Mrs. Dealia Farmer of San Diego, Calif. Each carried a white basket filled with pale pink chrysanthemums, accented with wine flowers and garlands of green ivy.

Candles were lighted by Miss Martha Wroten and Miss Becky Wroten, who were dressed in mist green embossed cotton satin frocks and accessories.

Fellowship hall of the church was scene of a reception which followed. Central decor for the bride's table was a mass arrangement of pink flowers in a cupid epergne flanked by pink tapers in cupid candleholders. The guest book table was decorated with a traditional memory candle nestled in pink blossoms and tulle. Mrs. Carol Thomas and Miss Cathy Wroten presided at the book.

The couple will be at home in Monroe until Mr. Varner's graduation in August, after which they will establish a home in Dallas.

Sandra Kay Peters Weds Ronald Joseph Dufrene In Candlelight Ceremony

In a twilight ceremony at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 6, Miss Sandra Kay Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Tom Peters, 101 Fairfield St., West Monroe became the bride of Ronald Joseph Dufrene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Dufrene of Raceland. The Rev. Vitus Duschinsky, O.F.M. performed the double ring ceremony in Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church.

Large arrangements of white Fuji chrysanthemums and white gladioli were placed on the center altar, on either side of which were burning cathedral tapers in candle trees and branched candelabra. Woodwardia ferns formed a background setting for the wedding party.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of antique white silk-faced peau de soie. The fitted bodice, re-embroidered with appliques of Alencon lace frosted by crystal bugle beads and tiny seed pearls, featured a Florentine neckline with below the elbow sleeves. The controlled skirt was accented by a detachable full chapel train, also embellished with the beaded-lace motifs. Large self fabric roses topped the sculptured pleats of the train. Her triple tiered bouffant veil of imported English silk illusion fell elbow length from a handmade Spanish pearl sunburst. She carried a matching sunburst Spanish pearl arrangement, centered with a white orchid and cascade of feathered white chrysanthemums.

Miss Susan Broomfield served as maid of honor and matrons of honor were Mrs. Louis Sanders, sister of the bride and Mrs. Victor David Cascio. Bridesmaids were Miss Sandra Moore, Miss Teala Dufrene, Miss Sue Russell and Miss Charlotte Tucker. The attendants were identically dressed in floor length gowns of Directoire design in turquoise Fiesta chiffon with a flowing detachable full length cape of the same material, accented at the neckline with Venice lace. Their headdresses of matching color were Queen's crowns in design with wrapped pearls, aurora borealis beads and shoulder length veils of pure silk English illusion. They wore matching slippers and carried long flowing arrangements of pastel blue spider chrysanthemums accented with bright green satin roping and glittered satin leaves.

James Falgout of Houma served Mr. Dufrene as best man and groomsmen were Steve Lasuzzo, Frank Hebert, Julian Mehl, Leo Schillaci and serving as ushers were Bob Schott, Victor David Cascio and Hugo Angelini. Altar boys were Wayne Lasuzzo and Skeeter Lasuzzo.

After the wedding a buffet supper was served followed by a reception and dance at the Paragon Supper Club from 8 p.m. until midnight. Reception tables were covered with floor length net over satin cloths. Central decor for the punch table was a mass arrangement of white bride's roses and candytuft in a tall cupid epergne. This was flanked by burning cathedral tapers in branched silver candelabra and a silver punch bowl. Nosegays of blue spider chrysanthemums and poufs of maline garlanded the draped table covers.

The table which held the Princess tiered cake, on a mirrored reflector, was decorated in a similar way with nosegays of the bridal flowers. On each side of the massive cake, with swan separators, were cupid candle holders, draped with ivy, and holding white tapers. The cake was crested with a miniature bride and groom standing in front of an altar.

Mrs. Larry Ferracci served the cake and Mrs. Vernon Broomfield presided at the punch bowl. Seated at the bride's book table was Mrs. Mary Scalia.

Plastic Zipper Resists Heat

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The zipper, one of the real marvels of this century, is still undergoing improvements. Newest forward step is a thermoplastic spiral zipper which can be ironed without melting.

To understand what this means, consider the modern zipper. No longer a comparatively thick affair of little metal teeth, it has become a thin plastic which is actually a spiral. It can even be pulled open when it jams, rezipped again.

But this little marvel, being a plastic whose shape is impressed by heat, has also been sensitive to heat. Iron in haste and a fused mess was the result.

Now a new plastic zipper, called Spiralon, is available, which will resist heat up to 450 degrees. It is claimed to have all the usual virtues of plastic zippers plus this new one.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Many People Consider Pets Part Of Family

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I made up my mind if it happened one more time I would write to you. Well . . . it did. I received a birthday card from a friend, signed "Best wishes from Gertrude and Madame Du Barry." Madame Du Barry is her dog.

This woman always signs her dog's name on everything and I resent it. I don't want best wishes from a dog.

Every Christmas I receive about ten or twelve cards with pictures of dogs and cats who are sitting right there with the family. "Fido, Snowflake, King and Champ" are treated as if they were children. When we get a card from a certain friend, my husband says, "I didn't realize the Browns had five girls." I told him they didn't. He said, "You're wrong, here are their names . . ." Then suddenly he discovered Ruth and Mazie were a couple of Siamese cats.

Will you put something in your column and end, once and for all, this ridiculous practice? — DANDER UP

Dear Dander: Many people consider their pets part of the family. It's amazing how many people who are perfectly well balanced in other respects go a little bit haywire when it comes to their pets. Accept it because you can't change it.

I became friendly with two girls who are also high school sophomores. Last Saturday afternoon we three went to the movies together. I was quite surprised when these girls seemed a lot more interested in meeting fellows than in watching the picture. They started up conversations with different groups of boys. One of the girls accepted a ride home with a boy she never had seen before.

When I told the other girl that I thought this was cheap, she said I was crazy — that it's fun to get acquainted with kids from other schools, and that a theater movie is the best place to meet. She called me "small-townish" and said where I came from everybody knows each other, but in a large city it's the only way to make new friends.

Is she right? — NOT SURE

Dear Not Sure: Girls who start conversations with boys they've never seen before put a cheap price-tag on their company. And it doesn't make any difference whether you live in Miami or Grand Island.

You need some girl friends whose ideas are more like the ones you brought from Nebraska.

Baskets of white gladioli and stock, alternated with tiered candelabra holding lighted tapers formed a setting for the ceremony performed at 6:30 p.m. by the Rev. O. W. Hogan. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Vivian Sloat and Mrs. O. W. Hogan, whose selections were Wedding Prayer and I Walk Beside You.

The bride was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. Her gown was designed with full length dome skirt of traditional white satin with lace bodice. Long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists. A white satin tiara with jewel headpiece held in place her elbow length veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of white carnations atop a white Bible, showered with satin streamers.

Miss Carol Sue Senn, maid of honor, wore a gown of Alpine Rose peau de soie, styled with belled skirt. Her headdress was of self fabric with a matching net veil and she carried a bouquet of white carnations. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids Miss Davy Ann Senn and Miss Marsha Bell, who also carried white carnation bouquets.

Candles were lighted by Ned Duffey, brother of the bride.

Mr. Senn served as best man for his son and groomsmen were Roger Kinison and Rayburn Senn.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a blue jersey dress with accessories to match and the mother of the groom wore a beige silk suit with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church where the bride's table was centered with an all-white arrangement of gardenias and roses. The tiered wedding cake and punch bowl were garlanded with gardenias and fern. Mrs. Freda Bell served the cake while Mrs. Pat Sills and Mrs. Dorris Bell alternated at the punch bowl.

When the couple left for a short wedding trip the bride was wearing a suit of eggshell white with white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. The couple will be at home in Crossett, Ark., where Mr. Senn is employed.

Among the out - of - town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly, Indiana; Howard Munyham, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Senn and Dewey Senn, Rayville.

MRS. JAMES H. LEAR

Shreveport Church Scene Of Lear-Thames Nuptials

Miss Doris Faye Thames and James H. Lear, both of Shreveport, exchanged wedding vows Saturday, June 6 at 7 p.m. in Queensborough Baptist Church, Shreveport. Rev. W. T. Furr performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, pyramids of white candles and jade trees.

STUFFED PORK CHOPS

You can bake stuffed pork chops, after browning. Use a moderate oven and allow the chops to get very tender—they'll be thick (for stuffing) so they'll probably need about 1½ hours.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

No one today believes that men don't make passes at girls who wear glasses, especially sun-glasses! It has become fashionble to wear these day and night, indoors and outdoors. The great variety of glamorous lens shapes and fancy frames obtainable have made sunglasses a chic accessory.

This mysterious shadow-eyed look took hold a few years ago after Audrey Hepburn wore big black - framed sunglasses in "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and the trend is becoming more prevalent each year. Smart restaurants are full of dark-goggled personalities, many of them famous, trying to read menus from behind their fashionable incognito.

CAN BE HARMFUL

However, sunglasses can be harmful if they are not chosen carefully. Medical eye men warn that the color of the lens is important. Brown, green and grey lenses are the best sun filters. Pale-blue, yellow and other colors may match your outfit, but are not so effective in protecting your eyes against the bright sunlight.

If you are more interested in avoiding eye strain than in being ultra chic, and I hope you are, buy a frame with lenses big enough to shade your entire eye rather than the little squares or extreme harlequins. Some shapes such as extreme harlequins or very wide wrap-arounds may produce distortion of your peripheral view.

NOT EXTREMES

This distortion is not always immediately evident. If you like them, use the style but not extremes.

If you wear sunglasses much of the time look for lightweight frames which will not make a pressure dent on the bridge of your nose. Remeber, too, that sunglasses, like regular glasses, require some care. Keep them in a leather or plastic case to avoid scratches and be sure that they are clean. Do not let others use them because a larger breadth between the ears may loosen the hinges. If your sunglasses waver or distort your vision, discard them and get others.

If you would like to have my exercises for the eyes, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 8 to Josephine Lowman in care of Monroe Morning World.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Top Awards Displayed

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Last Wednesday's Fifth District Garden Center television program was one that we can be very proud of — top award winning designs were displayed by the Evergreen Garden Club of Monroe. These were designs made for their first annual Flower Show, "Serenade of the Flowers." The club's president, Mrs. D. W. Tillman, with Mrs. Charles J. Germany, Flower show chairman and all the members worked very diligently together to make this a beautiful flower show, enjoyed by many. Some of the designs for the program were remade — thanks to these club members — so that you could enjoy them again.

Mrs. Tillman won a blue ribbon on her design in the class, "Sophisticated Lady", a design to be used on the living room coffee table. Her line was established by placing the curving sprigs of ivy (forming a Hogarth) in a tall Italian compote (dark purple in color). Oasis held this material in place and kept it fresh. Lavender-pink mums filled in the line with a cluster of dark purple Wandering Jew for focal interest. Lovely combination of color.

Mrs. Tillman won another top award in the Horticulture Division, Potted Plant section. The much coveted "Award of Merit" was placed on her potted succulents, "Hen and Chickens" echevera in an earthen jar. Mrs. Tillman planted the large jar with the small plants using regular gardening dirt. Her secret as to the wonderful growth of the succulent was — let it alone, place it in semi-shade, and give it very little water. The last bit of advice is very important. It is true that these plants require very little moisture. They rot away if too much water is applied. Ideal plant for rock gardens.

In the Artistic Design Division the "Tri-Color" award was given to Mrs. G. T. Brown Jr. Her design "In the Mood," was made for the dining table, formal design made of white glads entirely in a clear glass container on a footed silver base. Both sides were made identical, formal, symmetrical balance. Small palm (florist) was used as a filler in the basic part of the design.

Mrs. Charles J. Germany won her blue ribbon in the class, "Sunrise Serenade." She created a radiating design using light green dock for the line in a soft moss green colored compote container. Oasis held the plant material. The line was filled-in with golden yellow mums. Green holly berries were used as a filler. For focal interest she "picked" three lemons and placed them in the central area of the design. A few of the Burford holly leaves were used low as a filler. This was a perfect interpretation of the sunrise — and, cool in feeling for the breakfast table.

"Daddy's Little Girl" was the theme for the class on decorating a room for little girls in which Mrs. J. C. Dickerson won her blue ribbon. A pink candle entwined with baby ivy in a needle cup holder formed the line for her dainty design. The holder was placed on a white milk glass salad plate. Within this line was placed the dainty polyantha pink roses. Ivy leaves filled in the basic part of the design hiding the holder. The interpretive accessory, a small china doll dressed in a full pink dress, was placed beside the design, all placed on a wooden base which had been wrapped in small pink checked gingham — thus tying all the elements together in one unit.

Mrs. Dickerson won another blue ribbon on a very clever design entitled, "Don't Fence Me In". This was a design for the boy's room. On a natural wooden base (rectangular) she created a small scene. To the back was placed a part of a small wooden fence. Then in front of this she placed cactus with the lovely yellow bloom, held in place on a needle point holder which was hidden with several odd-shaped rocks. Sand was placed as a partial cover on the base. Two small wooden wheels could be seen, as though lost from a strayed desert wagon. To finish the picture a small carved wooden burrough was placed to the back and side of the cactus — a real conversational piece that any boy would enjoy in his room.

The "Award of Distinction," which requires—other than fresh cut plant materials dominating, was won by Mrs. Wayman H. Brown on her design in the class "Imagination," a design for the den. Brass scales were used as a container. Dried cattails were used on each side for the line material, filling in with a cluster of golden dried everlasting flowers (straw). Eucalyptus seed pods were used as filler, more being used on the lower tray of the scale to show "weight". Also, glycerinized eucalyptus was used on each plate of the scales. On the higher side, this was placed in an upright position, while on the lower plate it was placed to hang down to one side. This gave the feeling of weight, light and heavy on the scale which was purposely arranged unbalanced. More interest is created this way when the uneven levels are used.

Next week — Bayou DeSiard Garden Club will display interpretive designs — depicting one class in a flower show, "Video", striving for the award of distinction. These will be judged before the show — so watch for the results. Mrs. Peggy Tolson is the club's new president.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Cyclamens' Odd Antics

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The beautiful ivy like foliage of the hardy cyclamens has turned yellow now, and the corms of these magic plants have gone into their short period of dormancy. Last week, I found the capsules full of seeds down underneath the leaf mold mulch which covers a patch of Cyclamen neapolitanum. It is remarkable that these seeds were formed last summer and autumn and have withstood the bitter cold. The flower stems were all coiled into tight little springs which had pulled the seed capsules back close to the corms.

Botanists have long wondered why cyclamens, instead of scattering their seeds as other plants do, pull them back to their corms. Perhaps the cold winters of the European alps have something to do with this habit. Apparently, it is up to the ants to scatter the seeds, for they will come and take every single one away down into the hills to get the sweet glue which these seeds are covered.

European garden literature for three centuries has been saying that cyclamen corms are best left alone, but I have been moving them around during their dormant stages whenever it suited me for several years. A few corms of C. neapolitanum that did not get re-planted last year began to flower when their time came on July 4th without any water. (We recorded this fact in the column.) After about three weeks of their flowering, I set several in saucers with just a little water underneath them. Flowering then picked up considerably and went on apace for weeks. Later on, I planted these corms in pots, and their foliage came out normally and grew all winter out of doors.

In this country, it is difficult to get seeds of cyclamens (except the greenhouse kinds), but Thompson & Morgan of Ipswich, England offer them every year in their catalogue. In order to get fresh seeds of this year's crop, one should write directly to this firm because cyclamen seeds are always "in short supply", as the English say. Simply plant the seeds as you would any others just underneath the surface (preferably in pots). Old seeds will germinate very, very poorly, but fresh ones will provide you in a few months with many little single leaves. Come Spring, and you will have two leaves, and then the plants will increase in size every fall and winter until flowers appear in the third or fourth season.

Many readers of the column have ordered hardy cyclamens of the several kinds offered in pots by the West Coast bulb nurseries and are enjoying these superb, delicate little flowers each summer, fall and winter. This is the time, now, when cyclamens can best be handled — either in pots or as dry corms. Remember to take care and not plant C. neapolitanum upside down! The roots and the flowers both come out of the top of the corms. Just an inch or two of woodsy soil, leaf mold and a dusting of bone meal is all they want.

STAMPS

DOWN through the ages, postage stamps have shown illustrations of battle scenes, mustached national heros, animals, rocket ships, government building and even other postage stamps. Thus, it is a welcome addition when the Austrian Postal Department issues a stamp depicting a "kiss." Yes, a new 3 schilling stamp honoring the reopening of the exhibition hall of the Association of Architects, Painters and Sculptors shows a painting by Gustav Klimt, called "The Kiss," and features a man ready to plant a kiss on the lips of a beautiful woman. The painting is a representative of the Vienesse Secession period and is currently on view at the Austrian Gallery in Vienna. The exhibition, entitled "Vienna Around 1900," offers a comprehensive cross section of this period.

In order to keep the readers of this column up to date on new United States commoratives, a frequent listing on upcoming stamps will be given. As previously reported, the New Jersey Tercentenary 5-cent commemorative will be placed on sale June 15 at Elizabeth, N. J. The Nevada Statehood stamp will be issued on July 22 at Carson City, Nev. Other stamps announced but without dates or places of issue are: the Shakespeare commemorative, Mayo Doctors, American Music, Robert H. Goddard.

The United Arab Republic has issued a new 10-mills commemorative stamp honoring "The Nile Diversion Canal Day." Its foundation has already been laid and work is expected to be completed o nthe project by 1970. The upstream part of the dam which will block the river channel is part of the main dam and will be completed in 1968. The new stamp depicts the High Dam after its completion in 1968 and the diversion canal.

The Republic of China on Formosa will issue five new stamps of a new definitive series depicting Chu Kwang Tower at Quemoy. This is the third printing honoring the tower. The first design was released in 1959 and the second in 1960. The latest set was an ornamental border which frames the central design. Five Chinese characters meaning "Kinmen Chu Keang Tower" appear atop the stamp.

THE MIRACLE of human vision which sees more than just ordinary pebbles on a beach is explained my movie maker Saul Bass to young actor Walter Lane. Bass produced "The Searching Eye" in which the boy stars. It is an imaginative film now being shown at the Kodak Pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography is an integral part of the New York World's Fair. There isn't a pavilion, exhibit or attraction which doesn't use still or motion pictures in some way to attract, inform or entertain the endless crowds. It would take many days and repeated visits to see a large percentage of the worthwhile sights but even on the most limited of visits there are two unusual movies that should be searched out and seen.

One is a 20-minute color film, "The Searching Eye," which will be found at the Kodak, pavilion. The second is a four-minute film, "Patterns in Sport," which is projected continuously on a unique below-floor-level screen in the General Cigar "Hall of Magic" building.

"The Searching Eye" is the imaginative creation of Saul Bass & Associates of Hollywood, an outfit which specializes in original, off-beat titles and segments for many internationally acclaimed motion pictures. It is related to picture taking in a poetic sense for we learn to see things not merely with the eyes but with the mind in fanciful flights of the imagination.

Bass does this through a simple story of a 10-year-old boy walking through fields and along a beach. The appealing youngster kicks a pebble, picks a flower, builds a sand castle and watches the seagulls wheeling overhead. These are ordinary objects and actions usually lost in everyday routine. They become extra-ordinary, however, when seen through the concentrated vision of a searching camera lens which uncovers a world of wonder in each object.

"I try to awaken in people," Bass explained, "an awareness of the richness, excitement and beauty there is in seeing." It takes a searching eye, one that probes and studies, to recognize the beauty that surrounds us in commonplace objects.

To achieve the results seen in the film, many cinematic tricks and techniques were used such as time-lapse photography, underwater and aerial photography, microphotography and stop-action filmed at up to 2,500 frames a second. For some sequences, the film has multiple images showing simultaneously so it was put on 70 mm color film stock and requires two projectors in screening.

"The Searching Eye" is seen by as many as 20,000 people a day in one of the two special theaters in the Kodak Pavilion. It is proving to be one of the major attractions at the fair.

The unusual feature of "Patterns in Sport," a Sports Illustrated presentation, is its viewpoint both in its filming and in its viewing. Shooting was done mainly from an overhead, bird's-eye-view and occasionally from a looking-up, worm's-eye view. To maintain the odd viewpoint, the circular movie screen is recessed two feet below floor level. A circular wall surrounds the pit and slopes outward. It acts as a rail on which people lean to look down on the screen. About 80 people at a time can look down at the movie. A 16mm sound projector hangs overhead.

In shooting the film, the camera crew worked from special scaffolds erected 40 feet above the boxing, baseball, golf, hammer throw and billiards action shown. The most spectacular footage was shot by Jim Arender, a world champion skydiver, in California. With a modified aircraft gun camera attached to his helmet, he photographed a team of daredevil skydivers in acrobatic free falls below him.

For the final stunt, the skydiving photographer aimed for a target formed by the outstretched clasped arms of two other falling skydivers. By falling faster than they were, he dove through the bullseye formed by the joined hands, recording it as he went.

I'm not suggesting that camera fans should become skydivers to get a new camera viewpoint. But we can search for different camera angles in everyday shooting. Get up higher or down lower or off to one side instead of merely clicking the shutter automatically in the easiest, routine fashion. That is one way to transform commonplace pictures into something different.

3. Your snapshots may be made from any brand of negative type black-and-white film, but not from color transparencies. Black-and-white prints from color negative type films will be accepted. Any make of camera may be used. Developing and printing may be done by a photofinisher or the entrant. No print or enlargement more than 10 inches in the longer dimension will be accepted. No art work or retouching is permitted on prints or on the negatives from which they are made. No composite pictures, such as multiple printing or montages, are eligible. Pictures should not be mounted or framed.

4. To enter the contest, mail a print or prints of as many pictures as you desire, within the contest dates, to this newspaper's "Amateur Snapshot Contest Editor." On the back of each picture print your name and address clearly in ink, and the class in which you wish the picture entered. (See Classes.)

5. No black-and-white prints will be returned. Do not submit negatives with your prints. Keep them until requested by the Amateur Snapshot Contest Editor. (Only original negatives accepted.) This newspaper and the sponsors of the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards assume no responsibility for negatives or prints.

6. At the close of the contest, this newspaper will award Grand Prizes to the four pictures (one in each class) chosen by its judges as the best entered in its contest. These four winners then will be entered by the newspaper in the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards, where they will compete with the same number of entries from other participating newspapers for cash prizes totaling approximately $32,000.

7. All pictures shall be judged in the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards on general interest and-or appeal. Photographic quality, although important, may not necessarily be the deciding factor. The decision of the judges shall be accepted as final.

CLASSES

A. BABIES AND CHILDREN—One or more youngsters to be judged for cuteness, expression of character, or mood. Subjects may be engaged in any activity or interest. Adults may appear if they are not the principal interest.

B. ACTIVITIES — Teen-agers or adults. They may be engaged in any activity outdoors or indoors, at any season; occupations, hobbies, sports and recreations; any picture that tells a story of an interesting phase of everyday life. Children may appear if they are not the principal interest.

C. SCENES AND "TABLETOPS"—Judged for scenic or pictorial appeal —landscapes, marine views, historical spots, street scenes, buildings; or unusual "still-life" subjects including "tabletop" or miniature arrangements.

D. ANIMAL LIFE — Household pets, farm animals, forest wild life, zoo animals, etc.; any situation in which the aforesaid subjects are of principal interest.

8. It is not permissible to enter pictures in the contest of more than one newspaper participating in the Twenty-sixth Annual (1964) Newspaper National Snapshot Awards.

9. Before receiving the newspaper's final prizes in one or more of the four classifications, the entrant must submit the original negative with print, and sign a statement that his picture, or any closely similar picture of the same subject or situation, has not been and will not be entered by him in any snapshot contest, exhibit, or salon where prizes are awarded, other than the one conducted by this newspaper, and has not been and will not be offered for publication in any manner.

IMPORTANT: If you snap a picture which you expect to enter in the contest and in which a person or persons appear, be sure to get their names and addresses. This is necessary because, before your picture can become eligible for entry in the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards, the written consent of such recognizable person or persons to the use of the picture for promotional purposes must be obtained.

Johnson Enjoys ILGWU Singing Of Light Bulbs

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson was serenaded Saturday about his penchant for dousing White House lights and using the telephone—and the chief executive enjoyed it.

As Johnson listened, the 30-voice, mixed chorus of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union sang a four-chorus song composed by one of its members.

"With lights out at the White House,

"The GOP's in tears.

"The man who rose in Texas,

QUESTION: I recently purchased a large quantity of sand for use in a concrete project I have in mind. A neighbor took a look at the sand and said he thinks it contains too much silt, which I understand is a mineral soil deposit. He said that the concrete won't come out right if I make it with this sand.

I am willing to forget about using the sand for the concrete, since I have anoher use for it. But how do I know whether the sand has too much silt and how can I determine whether the next batch I buy will be the same?

ANSWER: Your neighbor is correct about the effect of making concrete with sand containing too much silt. Here is a simple test that will determine whether there is an excessive amount of silt, which is present to some degree in all sand. Pour about two inches of the sand into a small, clean, dry jar. Then add clear water to a point close to the top of the jar. Shake the jar vigorously for a couple of minutes, then set it down. The silt will go to the top, leaving the rest of the water perfectly clear. If the layer of silt is more than one-eighth of an inch in depth, the sand has too much silt and is not suitable for making concrete.

If you purchased the sand from a dealer who knew that it was to be used in a concrete mix, he should be willing to exchange it for the right kind. The presence of foreign materials in sand weakens the concrete mix and is one reason why ordinary beach sand is not suitable for this purpose.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Think about this for a minute: A 10-room home that requires no exterior painting, no roof repairing, no changing of screens and storm windows and no worrying about damage from high winds.

There is just such a place on the grounds of the New York World's Fair — but you wouldn't know about it if it weren't for a huge sign telling you so. For this is an underground home, complete with all modern conveniences, including believe it or not, an "outdoor" patio.

The underground home is the brainchild of Jay H. Swayze, who has lived with his wife and two daughters in a subterranean house in Plainview, Tex., for the last two years. Both his home and the one at the fair have a concrete shell set under more than three yards of earth. Because the home is underground, airconditioning is an absolute must, and this means fingertip control of humidity, pollen and dust as well as temperature. General Electric engineers who designed the air - conditioning equipment for the exhibit home discovered that it required only about half as much conditioning as would be required for the same size house above the ground. However, extra equipment was installed in this case to take care of the extra body heat thrown off by the thousands of visitors passing through the house.

CONVINCED

Does Swayze really believe people will want to live underground? He not only thinks they will; he predicts that within two years there will be builders of underground residences in every American community of 100,000 or more population.

Poisonous Plant Data

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

With the spring weather, gardeners and campers do well to know our common poisonous plant, poison ivy. This plant may be in the form of a low shrub or a vine climbing into trees or on fences. In climbing, it is supported by aerial roots along the stems. This plant is easily recognized. The leaves are in groups of three large shiny leaflets, each two to four inches long and pointed at the tip. A single, three part leaf grows from each nobe or joint on the stem. The flowers and fruits are always in clusters or slender stems that originate in the axis of the leaves along the side of the small branches. All parts of the poison ivy plant contain substances which may cause blistering of the skin. There is some variation in the habits of growth, leaflet shape, rooting and fruiting of the plant.

An old reliable control is ammate at one to two pounds per gallon of water. Wet the plants with the solution but be careful not to harm desirable plants. Follow manufacturers' instructions for application of any material to control poison ivy since special precautions are necessary. Become familiar with poison ivy. Destroy it in your yard and respect it at a safe distance in the woods.

JOBS FOR GARDENERS

Dust gladiolus with 5 per cent DDT to control Thrip. If corms were planted too shallow or if strong winds bend plants, stake for better formed flowers. Speaking of gladiolus, this week the D. K. Aldridges of Cheniere community brought your H. D. Agent the most gorgeous array of about 25 different varieties—each a perfect specimen. The Aldridges have enjoyed this project for several years.

Spray cape jasmine with summer oil emulsion, malathion or cygon to control White Fly.

Common pests of daylillies are plant lice. Control with cygon or malathion.

Annuals that may be planted in containers on patios are: Dusty Miller, Periwinkle, Geranium, Petunia, Dwarf Marigold and Sweet Alyssum.

DAIRY MONTH

June is dairy month and this is the 28th anniversary. This year's theme is "Keep cool with Dairy Foods, summer's hottest values".

Nutritionists generally agree that on a dollar for dollar basis, milk is the best food buy for the housewife.

Milk is an important food because it contains so many of the essentials for good nutrition. Two eight ounce glasses of milk give an adult 25 per cent of his daily protein and, provide 71 per cent of calcium requirement, 15 per cent of Vitamin "A" unless the fat is removed, 46 per cent of riboflavin and around 10 per cent of thiamine.

BUYING A SWIM SUIT

There are many fibers and combinations to select from when buying a swim suit. The following information may help you do a better job of selection. Cotton suits give excellent wear for sun bathing, are cool and wear well; are strong when wet, but will mildew.

Rayons have characteristics similar to cotton; lose some strength when wet. Chlorine bleaches tend to yellow and weaken them.

Acetates are moth and mildew resistant, have excellent dry and wet strength and dry quickly.

Rubber fibers form the core of lastex yarns. When the core is covered with cotton, rayon, nylon or other fiber yarns, the elasticity and resiliency of the yarn can be controlled.

Spandex is 2 to 3 times stronger and 1-3 lighter than rubber. Lycra is yellow and may be weakened by chlorine bleaches while Vyrene is resistant to chlorine bleaches. Both possess a high resistance to perspiration, cosmetic oils and lotions.

They are very strong wet or dry; quick drying, but are sensitive to strong sunlight. Acrylics (Orlon, Acrilon, Crestan, Zefrax) are lightweight, warm and have a dry pleasant feel. They dry quickly and have good wrinkle recovery. They are resistant to damage by sunlight, moisture and moths.

PAR Criticizes Governor's New Research Center

PAR said the proposed $10 million bond issue for the center violates basic principles of good government in finance administration, control of public funds and accountability for public funds.

The criticism came in a PAR analysis of five industrial inducement proposals sponsored by the McKeithen administration.

Three of the proposals seek to remove deterrents to industrial growth. Two deal with establishment of agencies to promote economic growth.

PAR said a central purchasing system as provided in a House bill would permit "substantial savings to the state through better purchasing practices."

The research council commented favorably on most aspects of the proposals to provide equity in the property tax on industry and the gas severance tax credit plan.

It was more critical of the proposed $10 million bond issue for the Gulf South Research Center.

PAR concurred with the idea of promoting research for economic development through the center. But it raised several questions about the approach which it indicated violates present public policy and several basic principles of good government.

CURTAIN CALL

Best wishes to the new officers of Little Theatre. The new president, Dr. Beryl C. Franklin, has appeared in ten plays, been on many a state crew and last year served as vice president for production.

The other officers are Craig Morgan, v.p. for administration; Eula Davenport, v.p. for production; Barbara Easterling v.p. for membership; Marge Mullens, secretary; and Tom Henry, treasurer. Eula's experience with Little Theatre has been extensive and if the others are newer on the scene, they all received a baptism of fire last season.

Tom Henry may consider baptism of fire a little too literal in view of the extensive damage Ruth and he suffered to their home in a blaze ten days ago.

The cast and crew of "Take Her, She's Mine" presented executive director Richard Clark and technical director Lonny Fraze with pipes as a memento of the show. A large and enthusiastic audience at the final performance last Sunday brought attendance to about the same level as 'The Miracle Worker" which closed last season. Members may be interested in knowing that combined attendance at all shows gained about 5 per cent over last year.

Gladys Miles brought us a find of old programs that had been saved by the late Laura and Nick Slator. Although the missing "Ice Bound" and "Arms and The Man" were not among them, were able to place several better preserved examples in the archives.

Del Sawyer, former conductor of the Northeast Jazz Ensemble, sent us a clipping about the problems confronting the community theatre in Nashville. Del is now at the George Peabody College for Teachers.

The first week of June was Little Theatre Week in Minden during which president Beryl Franklin addressed the Lions and board member Scherck Bogen the Civitans. Leonard Pesses, past president of the El Dorado Little Theatre and a faithful attendant at our plays, talked before Kiwanis in Minden the same week.

It was no easy task for Richard Clark to cast "My Fair Lady" with so much talent from which to choose. We know our audiences will acclaim Camille Wood as Eliza and Bill Moore as Henry Higgins. Their vocal and theatrical skills are just right for the two leads. Next week we will talk about the rest of the talented cast.

Some people have asked how the summer membership differs from past summers. Previously Northeast College and Little Theatre have collaborated on a non-membership summer series of one children's and two adult shows, as well as on drama and stagecraft courses for academic credit.

In other respects, the summer repeats previous ones. Little Theatre and Northeast are still collaborating on courses in theatre. Students have the asme opportunity as non-students to participate in any show, based solely on ability. In addition to "My Fair Lady," there will be a children's show, "Simple Simon," under the capable direction of George Brian, which will run in advance of the musical.

To sum up, Northeast and Little Theatre are continuing their pleasant summer partnership, although "My Fair Lady" is in every respect a Little Theatre production. With a budget triple that of any previous musical, we show how privileged we feel to bring this stupendous show to northeast Louisiana and how obligated to do it full justice.

Since memberships must be limited to the capacity of Strauss Playhouse for the scheduled run, we urge applying to Box 868 right now to secure yours, even if you prefer to wait until later to specify one of the performances between July 24 and August 2.

Turkish Leader Declines Trip To See Johnson

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkish Prime Minister Ismet Inonu has declined an invitation from President Johnson to visit Washington because of "pressure of current affairs" at home, a high government source said Saturday.

The visit was suggested in a recent exchange of messages between Inonu and Johnson in the face of growing Turkish concern over the Cyprus situation.

The source said Inonu again lengthily explained to Johnson the Turkish position on the Cyprus issue, and was promised that the United States would use its influence on the Athens and Nicosia governments to solve the crisis.

The source said Johnson also pledged "active U. S. support" in forthcoming U. N. Security Council deliberations aimed at restoration of law and order on embattled Cyprus.

Today we tour a new house, one of interest to all Louisianians: The Governor's Mansion. This handsome building, located on Capitol Lake in Baton Rouge east of the capitol itself, is a four level structure of Louisiana Greek Revival architecture.

Primary inspiration for exterior design of the Mansion was Oak Alley, a well - known Louisiana plantation home built in the 1830's. Echoes of Georgian design are seen in the Mansion's dormers, fanlight of the doorway, and long window on the stair. Oak Alley's second floor veranda was omitted. Construction is of hand-moulded type brick painted white, with white Doric columns on three and one-half sides. An interesting note is the construction of downspouts through the center of the columns, carrying off rainwater into underground drains. The Mansion's roof and paving on the porches are of cleft face Vermont gray-green slate.

To the east of the Mansion is parking space for fifty cars. Lampposts here were formerly used on the streets of Plymouth, England, where modernization has displaced them. Antique copper lanterns top the posts. The cast-iron railing atop the driveway retaining walls was designed from that used on the old Beauregard House on Chartres street, New Orleans.

Including the first floor veranda, the Mansion contains approximately 25,000 square feet. The interior is designed with family areas separated from those reserved for state functions. The ground floor contains the governor's private entrance and garage for six cars; servants quarters; a walk-in refrigerator, dry storage; fall-out shelter; laundry; and ninety tons of mechanical equipment.

On the first floor, the state reception rooms occupy the front section, with family living rooms behind the center hall. Family bedroom suites are located over the state rooms, with the guest bedroom wing over the first floor family rooms. The third floor contains a family recreation room, three supplementary guest bedrooms, an equipment room and storage.

Typical of the period after which the Mansion was patterned, the fanlight paneled double door of the front entrance was inspired in particular by a doorway in the Ohio antibellum home of the late Senator Robert Taft. The light fixture in the entrance vestibule with the seal of Louisiana etched on its crystal globe was removed from the former mansion.

The main reception hall and the grand stair hall beyond are paved with marble quarried and fabricated in Italy. Centering the floor of the circular stair hall is a six-foot marble slab containing the state seal. Approximately 2500 pieces of marble are used, 25 individual pieces in the eye of the pelican alone.

Flanking the reception area are the state drawing room (25 feet by 45 feet) and state dining room (25 by 35). Matching five foot thirty branch chandeliers, circa 1830, hang in these rooms. They were obtained in Europe and refashioned in New Orleans for the mansion. Walls in the state rooms are of palest antique gold, with draperies of antique green silk damask. Furnishings are reproductions of eighteenth century pieces, with upholstery of rose linen velvet. Door and window casings with corner blocks of rosettes were inspired by similar trim in Louisiana plantation homes of the period.

The mahogany six-pedestal dining room banquet table will extend up to 25 feet with added leaves. The 21-foot top was made from an antique table top obtained in England. Six tables for six, or other combinations of smaller tables can be arranged from the sections. In the dining room are two large marble top serving consoles brought from the old mansion. The wood mantel in the room is copied from one at Ormond plantation.

Perhaps the most interesting items of the furnishings are two hand-woven rugs in the state rooms. These have backgrounds of pale gold with designs worked rose, blue, and green. In the drawing room, the rug contains the coats of arms of France, Spain, and Britain with the following historical scenes: landing of Bienville; Ursuline nuns; early St. Louis cathedral and the Cabildo; early river front; LaSalle claiming Louisiana; an Indian village; Baton Rouge; Natchitoches; the Acadians; the first Spanish governor.

As its central motif, the dining room rug has the spread eagle with 18 stars — the number of states when Louisiana entered the Union. Border vignettes depict the following scenes: transfer of Louisiana from France to the United States in 1803; W. C. C. Claiborne, first American governor; Battle of New Orleans; founding of Shreveport; invention of the sugarmill; plantation scenes; river scenes; John James Audubon; coming of Lafayette to New Orleans.

Bronze doorknobs embossed with the seal of state were taken from the old mansion and installed on first and second floors. Sunburst elliptical bronze door knobs and sunburst roses used on second floor bedrooms are also from the old mansion.

Adjacent to the state dining room is the state butlery, an intermediate serving area designed to house state linens, china, crystal and silver. Banquet cloths are stored on rollers in a specially designed closet. The commercial type stainless steel state kitchen is designed to meet the needs of large dinners and parties.

Located on the West side of the Mansion, the family living room is paneled in native Louisiana tidewater cypress. The mantel in this room was copied from one in an old plantation home. the 18-branch brass chandelier in the family dining room formerly hung in the old mansion.

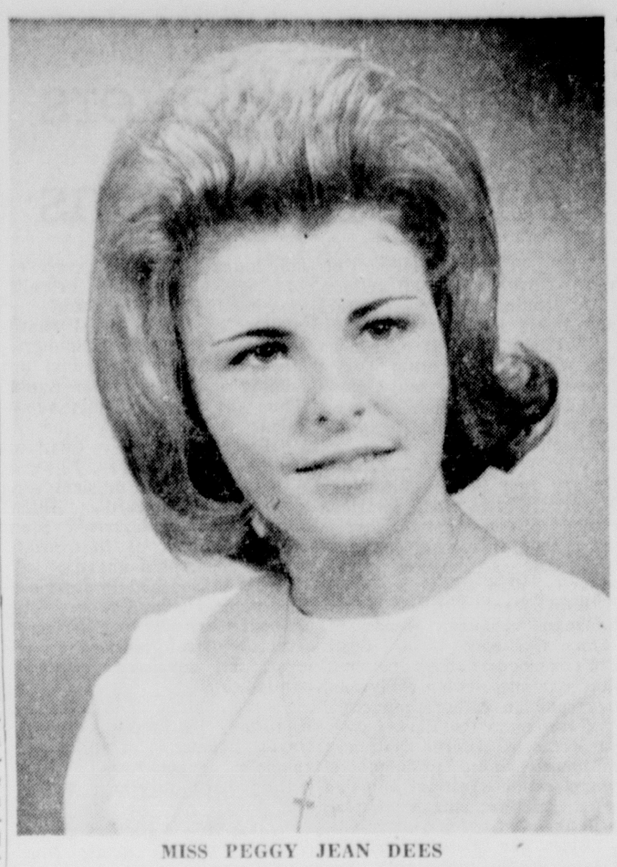

On the second floor are bedrooms for family and guests. The first lady's bedroom faces south, overlooking the front veranda. In this room is a modern hand-carved wood mantel in the style of the Directoire period. Directly behind this is the governor's bedroom, with a mantel copied from the old Louisiana Bank building on Royal Street. Also on the second floor is the governor's office, paneled in vertical white oak boards.

The north wing of the second floor houses the guest suite, which includes a large sitting room, the state bedroom, and two additional bedrooms, all with bath. There are three more guest bedrooms on the third floor.

Before we forget that it's gotten to be June, let's stop and read again Robert Burns "My Love is Like a Red Red Rose":

That's newly sprung in June.
My love is like a melody
That's sweetly played in tune.
So fair art thou, my bonny lass,
So deep in love am I.
And I will love thee still, my dear,
Till all the seas gang dry.
Till all the seas gang dry, my dear,
And the rocks melt with the sun.
And I will love thee still, my dear,
While the sands of life shall run.

You'll find the first installment of this thrilling series by one of America's greatest generals on Page B-3 in today's Monroe Morning World. In all there will be 16, and his description of his greatest fear will be in one of the installments this coming week. Franklin Parish Suspect Jailed In Money Theft

WINNSBORO (Special) — T. J. Grimble, 34, a Negro ambulance driver for Richardson Funeral Home here, is being held in the Franklin Parish jail in connection with theft of $128 from Alex King Sr., a 63-year-old Ferriday Negro.

King was injured in a head-on car collision near Mangham about 4:30 p.m. Friday and was dead on arrival at E. A. Conway hospital at Monroe.

The Franklin Parish sheriff's department, the State Police and the Winnsboro city police are investigating the theft.

According to authorities, King was first taken to Rogers Clinic by a First National Funeral Home ambulance for treatment here. They said King paid First National $10 and attendants put his billfold in his pocket.

Richardson Funeral Home, a Negro service, was called to take King on to E. A. Conway, they said, and the hospital reported him dead but said he had no identification.

Officials said Grimble, who was driving the ambulance to Monroe, was picked up about 10:30 p.m. Friday and under questioning, they said he admitted taking the money from King and throwing the billfold away. Investigators said the wallet had not been recovered yet.

Authorities said they are continuing to investigate the case.

A Baton Rouge woman, Mrs. Lorraine H. Phillips, was also injured in the accident and is at St. Francis Hospital in Monroe.

12 Cadets Get Commissions

America needs leadership and leadership comes from the "uncommon man," Northeast Louisiana State College athletic director Dixie B. White told spring graduates of the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps at commissioning ceremonies Saturday afternoon.

"Teamwork is essential in athletics — almost as essential as it is in military success," Coach White said. "And teamwork requires leadership. I hope you will strive to be the "uncommon man' one must be to give such leadership."

During his address White cited such men as George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Gen. George S. Patton and Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Each had a vision and a goal, he pointed out.

Twelve Northeast State military graduates received commissions as second lieutenants in the U. S. Army Reserve. Three received recognition as distinguished military graduates and as such are eligible to apply for regular army commissions. They are Donald E. King of Bossier City, assigned to the finance corps; James I. McGough of Monroe, artillery, and Preston A. Rudisill of Monroe, army intelligence.

Others receiving commissions were William A. Haley and James M. Parkerson, both of Monroe, and Ernest E. Rhymes of West Monroe, artillery; Melvin L. Rambin of Jacksonville, Fla., and David B. Sprague and Don R. Turner, both of Monroe, infantry; John R. Smith and Ronald L. Worley, both of Monroe, signal corps, and Dewey J. Smith Jr. of Dubach, Medical Service Corps.

'Tired' Mart Takes Biggest Slip In '64

NEW YORK (AP)—A "tired" stock market slipped last week to its sharpest loss of 1964. Trading was dull.

Not a single day provided volume of five million shares, which has been about average this year.

Various analysts, noting the dribbling, irregular decline of the previous two weeks, described the list as apathetic, indifferent to good news, unimpressed by bad news and lacking incentive.

For nearly 10 weeks the market had confined itself to a range with a low point of 810.77, set by the Dow Jones industrial average April 30. Thursday, as prices edged lazily down past this "support," traders unloaded. Before the day ended, the Dow industrials plunged 9.31 points to 802.48 in the steepest loss since Nov. 22, the day President Kennedy was assassinated. The average fell 21.15 that day.

Friday, however, there was a fairly vigorous rebound which brought the Dow back to 806.03. The loss for the week was 14.53.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week declined 4.4 to 301.6 in the largest decline since the week ended Nov. 23 when it fell 9.8.

Volume totaled $55,449,000 par value compared with $38,587,000 the previous week.

DECLINING FOR the third week in a row, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks chalked up its sharpest weekly loss since last November when President Kennedy was assassinated. For the latest week the average closed at 301.6 from 306.0 a week ago as indicated in the above chart. The commodity index advanced for the first time in four weeks, closing at 162.1 from 161.6 in the preceding period. Livestock and nonferrous metals were big gainers. (AP Wirephoto)

Large Building In Crossett Is Leased By Firm

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — The upturn in business in Crossett has brought the renting of one of the oldest and largest business buildings in the business district, the Burr's Building on the corner of First Avenue and Main Street.

The huge building, which has stood vacant for almost ten years, has been leased from its owner, Dr. Morris Goodman of Miami, Fla., to the Gibson Discount Stores, according to Mr. J. P. McDonald, executive vice-president of the Gibson Company.

The Burr Building, which stands where the old Crossett Co. Commissary stood for many years, was last occupied by the Burr Department Store, which went out of business in March of 1955. The building has since been something of a paradox as it stood vacant in the midst of the rapidly expanding business district of the city.

According to McDonald, the building will be occupied about Aug. 1, and the new store will employ from 20 to 25 persons.

The Gibson chain is a rapidly expanding concern, and now has stores throughout the South, including one at Pine Bluff and one at El Dorado.

Grain Futures Remain Steady

CHICAGO (AP) — Prices in the grain futures market reacted mainly to weather last week and changes in most contracts were small.

Rye was firm and posted gains of more than two cents a bushel. July soybeans finished in firm range. All other deliveries were only fractions either way from previous closes despite some broad daily fluctuations.

Brokers said the market at this time of year normally is guided by weather conditions and progress in farm work.

Wheat closed ⅜ cent a bushel lower to ¼ higher than a week ago, July new grade 1.49⅜-¼; corn unchanged to ⅞ higher, July $1.23⅞-24; oats ⅛-⅝ lower, July 62¼-⅜; rye 2¼-2⅞ higher, July $1.25¾-26; soybeans ¼-1⅛ higher, July $2.49¾-½.

Business Briefs

CONFERENCE SLATED

Prudential Special Agent J. Arthur Smith, Jr., C.L.U., will attend the company's national business conference at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, in New York City, June 17 to 20.

GETS PROMOTION

E. Arnette Craven, formerly of Monroe, has been appointed national junior director of Woodmen of the World, it was announced Saturday by President William H. Martin.

Craven, a native of Newton, Mississippi, had been an instructor and section supervisor in the Educational Department of the Society's home office in Omaha, Neb., for the past year. Joining the Woodmen field force in 1960 in Monroe, he was promoted to district manager in July, 1961. He is a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College.

SBA AGENT TO VISIT

E. J. Molony, branch manager of the Small Business Administration Office in New Orleans, announced that a representative of that office will be in Monroe Wednesday, June 10, in Room 304 U.S. Post Office and Federal Court Building from 8 a.m to 4 p.m. to confer with anyone interested in the services of this government agency.

Molony also said, "It would be helpful if inquirers would bring with them at the time of the interview a recent balance sheet and profit and loss statements for the past three years."

Cotton Rallies After Early Dip

NEW YORK (AP) —Prices rallied on the New York cotton market after an early dip and finished the week with gains of $2 to $8.55 a bale from the preceding week.

The advance reversed a decline that clipped $1.45 to $2.95 a bale from prices the week before.

Trade sources said the market was influenced mainly by an announcement by the secretary of agriculture on handling of payment-in-kind certificates under the new cotton legislation.

This was interpreted as meaning that payments would go principally to the "last handler," and influence cotton prices to stay around the 30 cents a pound support level rather than the 23½ cents world price level.

The New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau estimated exports in the week ended last Tuesday at 60,000 bales compared with 126,000 a week earlier. This brought exports for the season through June 2 to 4,804,000 bales as against 2,954,000 in the comparable preceding period.

Beatles' Drummer Begin Recovery

LONDON (UPI) — Ringo Starr, drummer of the British pop singing group the Beatles, is "very much better" after treatment for tonsilitis and pharyngitis, University College Hospital reported Saturday.

FULL AGREEMENT

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI)—Yugoslav President Tito said Saturday he had found full agreement of views in his talks with Finnish President Urho Kekkonen.

THOSE BRADFORD BUILT HOMES CRAFTSMEN!

Don't ever disturb a chef de cuisine when he's basting a poulet au porto . . . or a couturier with a mouthful of pins . . . or a Bradford Homes craftsman with a T square in his hand. He's a perfectionist! BRADFORD BUILT HOMES are a product of this capacity for concentration and concern for infinite detail. It's the reason why BRADFORD BUILT HOMES are such fine homes. It's also one of the reasons why it's almost impossible to find one that is not sold. The supply of these handcrafted homes is necessarily limited, but this should not discourage you. There's only a short wait . . . and such a fine home is worth waiting for. Particularly when you are aware that this extra care, this extra quality, this extra value costs you no more. This is true.

Our all new 1964 series consisting of "The Elegante", "The Ultimato" and "The Status" will be ready soon for your most critical inspection.

Monroe Deanery Council Meet Set For June 14

The quarterly meeting of the Monroe Deanery Council, DCCW, will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, June 14, at St. Joseph's Church in Monroe.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will precede the meeting. The Reverend Father William Allen, pastor of the host parish will officiate at the ceremony.

Mrs. Janet Chatelain, of Bunkie, Diocesan Foreign Relief Chairman will conduct a workshop featuring the work of her committee. Mrs. Lucille Stokes, also of Bunkie, Diocesan Rural Life chairman, is scheduled to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Virginia M. Evans, of West Monroe, a Child Welfare Consultant with the State of Louisiana, will describe her work at Children's House. In this institution, located in Ruston, there are children from all over the State, Children's House was established comparatively recently and is employing a new approach to helping children from broken homes, those slow in school and those with other problems.

"To be or not to be . . ." "Ser o no ser . . ." Hamlet, translated into Spanish, was a recent standing room only success in Mexico City, as were plays by Molière and Tennessee Williams.

At various times, the Old Vic and the U.S. Actors' Studio have played to packed houses.

Presented in the interest of international goodwill through the cooperation of The Advertising Council, the Consejo Nacional de la Publicidad, and the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association.

Hints from Heloise

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I use nylon net for everything now since you told us about it.

Today I skirted my mop with nylon net on one side. With the net skirted around my kitchen mop I cleaned my floor in exactly five minutes.

Ana Marie Petersen

* * *

DEAR ANA:

We just tried putting a piece of nylon net over a wet sponge-type mop! It's fantastic. You are a little darlin' to tell us about this one.

We found that for a string mop you can tie a few long strips, or one big piece of net to the "head"—along one side only, so that the mop may be turned over. Or if you have a sponge-type mop, you can take rubber bands and use them to hold the net on the sponge. Then it can be removed easily for washing.

Ohh. . . and does it clean the floor! Heel marks, dried milk spatters and all.

Honey chile . . . I love you from the bottom of my heart for taking the time to help us.

PERFECT PIECRUST

DEAR HELOISE:

When I make piecrust I roll it between two layers of waxed paper. I remove the top layer of the paper, pick up the bottom sheet (the dough has stuck to this) and "slap" it upside down into my pie tin.

I take another matching pie tin and place it on top of the dough and the waxed paper. This, I mash! The crust is molded to the lower tin perfectly.

I let this set about two minutes and then gently remove the top piece of waxed paper.

Anyone can have a perfect piecrust this way with no worn, torn or frayed edges or holes!

Mrs. L.L. Coleman

BOTTLE CAP SCRAPER

DEAR HELOISE:

I keep a soda pop (soft drink) cap in the soap tray over my kitchen sink.

This cap is real handy to use as a scraper when cleaning burned pots and pans! Takes up no room in the soap tray and when the cap is turned upside down, it keeps the bar of soap out of the residue it usually makes.

Now tell me I'm a corker.

Marian

Yes, Marian, you are a corker. It

SWEATER FUZZ

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a beautiful sweater that is covered with fuzzy little knots.

Sweater Gal

* * *

DEAR SWEATER GAL:

Lay your sweater out on the top of a table (or on your knees) and gently sand it with a piece of fine sandpaper. This will remove all the little knots. Many professional cleaners use this method and it really works.

PAINT BRUSH-UP

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a painter. I put my brushes in a can of paint-brush cleaner when finished for the day and cover the can with a plastic bag. Even a plastic bread wrapper will do! I can paint and not have to worry about cleaning my brush each time. Plastic bags also help keep the cleaner fluid from evaporating.

If you are painting and want to stop for a few hours, just wrap your brush in a plastic bag until you continue painting and it will not dry out.

GAS RANGE TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

I've been married forty years and would not think of melting paraffin in anything but a coffee can. Here's why.

You can place your paraffin in a coffee can and melt it very slowly over your simmer burner. Use what you need and leave any remaining paraffin in the can and place the lid back on after the paraffin is cold. (Be sure to wash the can first in hot suds, then scald it thoroughly to prevent germs.)

Label this coffee can "PARAFFIN" and put it away until the next season, or the next time you make jelly, etc. If, after using it several times, the can becomes discolored, I just throw it away and use a new coffee can and new paraffin.

V.I.D.

PRETTY SHARP!

DEAR HELOISE:

After painting, I have discovered the easiest way (I think) to get paint off windows. I just slap the paint on, then wait for the first rainy day. After it rains, when the windows are damp, take a single-edge razor blade and go to it. Paint comes off as easy as pie!

Jessie Lewis

* * *

Heloise

BRUSH-ON WAX

DEAR HELOISE:

Did you ever try applying liquid wax with a paint brush when waxing your

First, pour the wax into a bowl so that you can dip your brush into it. You not only save wax, but time and energy, by using this method. It goes on beautifully and spreads more evenly than when using an applicator. No waste at all. The brush is much easier to wash than an applicator, too.

Alberta

MIRROR MAGIC

DEAR HELOISE:

Adhesive-backed plastic in an ivy pattern can be cut out and applied around any mirror for decorative effect.
